$1.25 Million Grant To Boost B.C. Centenary

Queen Denies Margaret's Engagement

LONDON (AP)—The Royal Family today officially denied that Princess Margaret is likely to become engaged to marry Prince Christian of Hanover.

A statement issued at Clarence House, the princess' home, said: "The press secretary of the Queen is authorized to say that the report that Princess Margaret is likely to become engaged to Prince Christian of Hanover is untrue."

The 35-year-old prince, German-born director of a London shipping firm, simultaneously issued a similar denial.

His statement said: "I wish to deny the story that I might become engaged to Princess Margaret and to say that there is no truth in these rumors."

The Daily Express quoted the 35-year-old Christian as saying "I can neither confirm nor deny" the rumor.

The informant said the prince's command of English was not the best and he apparently had made this statement in reply to questions without quite realizing its implications.

The fair-haired six-foot prince is a director of a London shipping company. He and Margaret have rarely been in one another's company.

Christian is a brother of Queen Frederika of Greece and a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, which makes him a distant cousin of Margaret.

B.C. Power Body May Declare New Rates Next Week

B.C. Power Commission customers will know next week whether their electricity bills will be higher.

The commission said today that "recent rate studies have been completed, and an announcement of the results is expected next week."

Increases are expected in a majority of the commission's power districts. The commission said the purpose of the rate study has been "to insure adequate revenue to meet increasing costs" and to "achieve a simplification of the rate structure."

B.C. government will distribute up to $1,250,000 in grants to aid local groups in staging centennial celebrations in 1958, and in paying for community projects.

Greater Victoria municipalities already have indicated willingness to "pool" their grants to formulate a lasting and worthwhile project.

Two separate grants will be available.

The first, of 40 cents per capita, will be distributed to assist in staging a 1958 centennial year celebration. The funds, from the provincial treasury, will go to each municipality which has formed a local centennial committee.

The second grant, up to a maximum of 60 cents per capita, will be available for "a centennial project, preferably one of lasting value and significance to the community."

This grant will be granted only on condition the local group will also raise funds, which will be matched 50-50 by the province up to the 60 cents per capita maximum.

ON 1956 FIGURES

Both grants will be determined on the basis of 1956 census figures. Funds will be released at the beginning of the 1957 provincial government fiscal year, in April.

Greater Victoria municipalities expect the forthcoming census to show a population total of about 120,000 for the Esquimalt, Saanich, Oak Bay, Victoria area.

This would mean a total of $50,000 for staging celebrations, and about $148,000 for a project, providing each area raises its 50 per cent portion.

GOOD IDEA

Reeve Fred Norris, Oak Bay, said the grants "should certainly stimulate local interest in the centennial." He thought each municipality could do little Greater Victoria "pool their re-suggested that areas such as with its 'project grant' and sources."

"I feel this system of grants is a very good idea," said Mr. Norris.

Reeve Arthur Ash, of Saanich, said "I agree with Reeve Norris' suggestion that we perhaps pool the grant that would come to the Greater Victoria area."

"This is an ideal situation for inter-municipal co-operation," said Reeve Ash. "It is too bad similar situation in the past have not been acted upon because of a lack of willingness to

Britain Triggers Atom Blast

Tremor Felt For 100 Miles

ONSLow, Australia (Reuters)—Britain exploded an "atomic device" on a high steel tower in the remote Monte Bello islands today, setting off a flash like a sheet of lightning clearly visible here.

People in this northeast Australian port, 100 miles from the test site, felt a rumble like thunder and saw the familiar mushroom-shaped atomic cloud rise high over the horizon.

It turned pink in color as Canberra jet bombers streaked through its centre taking air scoops of radioactive samples.

An official announcement based on a naval signal flashed from the headquarters ship, Narvik, said the weapon was detonated successfully at 3.51 a.m. Greenwich mean time, 6.51 p.m. MDT Tuesday.

Seven minutes later, ONSlow—about 100 miles from the Monte Bello site—felt a rumble like thunder and a slight tremor at the jetty.

THIRD TEST

This was Britain's third atomic test series, and the second on the barren Monte Bello. A fourth series is scheduled for October or November, at Maralinga, native name for "field of thunder" in the western Australian desert.

ABOARD U.S.S. MT. McKINLEY at BIKINI, Thursday, May 17 (UP)—Unfavorable winds moved in on this mid-Pacific test site today, threatening another postponement of America's first hydrogen bomb air drop.

Less than five hours before the scheduled shot time a heavy wind pattern developed and test officials said they would have to make another study before deciding whether to proceed.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Esquimalt, said "I think Mayor Scurrah is right. It is probably the best thing to pool the money."

"But," he said, "this matter will have to be discussed with council. They might have something in mind for Esquimalt alone, this being the oldest settlement."

Reeve Wurtele thought the grant system "sounds very, very nice."

Both grants will be determined on the basis of 1956 census figures. Funds will be released at the beginning of the 1957 provincial government fiscal year, in April.

GIRL, 14, SAYS:

'I Saw the Plane Hit Building'

Editor's note: The following is an eyewitness account of Tuesday night's crash of a CF-100 fighter plane into the Ville St. Louis convent, near Orleans, given by a 14-year-old girl whose parents operate a store and lunch counter in the neighborhood.

BY GLORIA FLORA

As Told to British United Press

OTTAWA (BUP)—I will never forget last night's horror as long as I live. Many nuns I knew and loved were burned to death when the plane crashed into the convent.

I can't forget their screams and the terrible crackle of the flames as the convent burned and crumpled.

Mommy tried to stop me going outside when we first heard the jet over our shop. It seemed to be only a few feet away. I went out and now I am sorry I did.

I saw the burning plane hit the beautiful building. We all loved the convent, especially the little chapel where I have often attended mass.

I saw the chapel last night as I had never seen it before. The jet had crashed near the wall separating it from the other part of the main building and the chapel was lit up by the rockets bursting and later the fire that burned down everything.

Mommy and I just stood there and cried. We couldn't do anything for the crying nuns because we were too far away and the men of Hiawatha Park could only beat a few of them out.

I felt sick as I heard the screaming die down, and Mommy and I went back inside.

RCN's 'Father Dick' Among Jet's Victims

Rev. Richard M. Ward of Toronto, one of the victims of the Orleans jet crash, was "Father Dick" to hundreds of officers and men in the Pacific Command.

One of the most popular and most sincerely liked chaplains ever to serve on this coast, he was Pacific Command chaplain (RC) from January, 1952, to September, 1954.

"Father Dick" was a quiet-spoken, unassuming man, with a level, even temper. He was equally at home in wardrobe, mess flat, or chapel; he enjoyed conversational relaxation, dispensed advice, spiritual and temporal counsel quietly and effectively.

At the time of his death, aged 42, he was an assistant chaplain of the fleet. He lived at the RCN's residence and, in addition to his naval duties, served as parish priest to the surrounding community.

For four years, "Father Dick" was chaplain in the aircraft carrier HMCS Magnificent. When Canada sent destroyers to the Korean area to assist United Nations forces, he was flown to the Far East, where he acted as chaplain to all three of the destroyers first on the station—HMC Ships Sioux, Athabaskan and Cayuga. He was in Korea for more than a year.

PM 'Shocked' by Tragedy Offers Govt.'s Sympathy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister

St. Laurent said today he is deeply shocked at the death last night of 15 persons by the crash of an RCAF jet fighter into the convalescent home of the Grey Nuns of the Cross seven miles east of Orleans.

His statement said: "In the name of the government and on my own behalf, I would express my most sincere sympathy to the distinguished community of the Grey Nuns of the Cross and to the families of the unfortunate victims of the disaster."

He said the number of victims will not increase beyond that actually known at the present time, and he would extend to the injured his best wishes for a prompt recovery.

Victim Identified

CALGARY (CP)—RCAF officials at Clarendon Tuesday identified as LAC William Alexander Hopping, 35, of Vancouver, the airman who was killed in a head-on crash between two cars which took three lives Monday.

Death Toll at 15 In Ottawa Tragedy

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—Flaming death Tuesday night plunged out of a dark night sky and enveloped aging nuns in white-hot metal and falling bricks.

Fifteen persons died in the fire and ammunition explosions that followed an RCAF CF-100 jet's plummet, like a giant arrow, into the centre of a three-story convalescent home for Grey Nuns in this tiny town seven miles east of Orleans. Four others were injured.

"I thought it was a bomb. It was horrible," said an eyewitness, Sister Louise Auguste, one of 22 who escaped.

"It reminded me of Dante's inferno. I'll never forget the screams as long as I live," said Lawrence Baker. He was among the first to reach the scene, and took part in fruitless rescue attempts.

Eleven Roman Catholic nuns—their ages ranged from 21 to 77—the plane's two-man crew, a priest and a laywoman cook perished in the inferno lit when the rocket-armed twin-jet smashed into the nursery after a dive from 33,000 feet.

The air force disclosed today that the 17-ton CF-100 of air defence command was ordered into the air to identify a plane which turned out to be an RCAF North Star coming in from Resolute Bay in the Arctic and whose flight had been delayed.

By a cruel stroke of fate, the plane struck the only building of any size in the small community of Hiawatha Park near this town seven miles east of Orleans.

All around the home are open fields.

Steel girders of the home were twisted into agonizing shapes by the heat.

The explosion was heard as far as 15 miles.

The flaming building, brightly silhouetted against the night sky, could be seen from miles away.

Hours after the thundering crash, coal stored in the basement still fed the fire.

Partially-tumbled walls of the three-story structure still stood today along with the 40-foot chimney. A warped steel fire escape clung crazily to one wall.

Bricks and masonry were strewn around the green lawns surrounding the convent.

One second was the measure between life and death for those asleep in the nursery.

Given that second the CF-100 would have skimmed the convent's roof to crash in the open fields or the Orleans river.

The crewmen would have died—but the others would have lived.

The fighter struck one wall of the three-story brick building and plunged onward into its centre.

Bricks and masonry were strewn around the green lawns surrounding the convent.

Firemen said it may be days before the white-hot debris cools enough so that all bodies can be recovered. Even then positive identification might be virtually impossible.

First body identified was that of navy chaplain Rev. Richard Ward, 42, of Toronto, a veteran of the Korean War. His burned body was apparently hurled onto the lawn by the explosion.

Air defence command at St. Hubert, Que., said the rocket-launched CF-100's last reported altitude was 33,000 feet. When last heard from, the pilot had given no indication of any difficulty.

The nunery, known as Villa St. Louis, was about one mile north of the main Ottawa-Montreal highway. The Ottawa river flowed by its front door.

The CF-100 came like a bomb out of an overcast and hazy sky. Here is how Sister Louise Auguste of St. Arsenne de Temisque, Que., one of the surviving nuns, described it:

"I had just prepared to go to bed when the crash came. The plane came over and then hit the middle of the roof and blew up."

"The whole building seemed to burst into flames at once. I think everyone on the top floor must have been killed."

RCAF Begins Probe Into Twin-Jet Tragedy

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF today announced appointment of Group Capt. H. C. Ledoux as president of a board of inquiry to investigate Tuesday night's crash of a CF-100 jet fighter into a convent near Orleans, Ont., seven miles east of Orleans.

Group Capt. Ledoux is commander of the RCAF station at North Bay, Ont.

CHATHAM, N.B. (CP)—An RCAF pilot was killed Tuesday when his Sabre jet fighter crashed into the woods about a mile west of the airport here. The victim was identified as Flt. Lt. D. H. Atherton of Welland, Ont., and Newcastle, N.B.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent attended the marathon sitting closely, reading most of the time from a red leather-bound gilt-edged volume. Towards the end of the sitting, he joined in the laughs at weary sallies between government and opposition members.

He broke his silence on the measure only once. In answer to prodding from Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin Simcoe) Mr. St. Laurent said, "I would rather be silent than speak like you."

It was the first time since the

OTTAWA (BUP)—Members of Parliament went home with the milkman today after sitting for more than 14 hours and passing the preliminary resolution on the government's pipelines legislation, 158 to 54.

The Commons began its sitting at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday, and sat around the clock—and more—with only a supper recess.

Until 1 a.m. it debated Trade Minister C. D. Howe's controversial pipelines resolution in committee, with speeches limited to 20 minutes. The axe was to have fallen at 1 a.m., under the closure rule, employed for the first time since 1932, but opposition members raised repeated points of order and forced vote after vote in a determined fight.

It was 2.45 a.m. before the resolution was passed in committee, and concurred in by the House. Then a new point of order was raised by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), declaring the House could not proceed further, when Howe asked for "leave to introduce" the formal legislation based on his resolution.

Earlier in the morning, Fulton came near being named when he raised repeated points of order. Being named in Parliament entails the expulsion of the errant member for the balance of the sitting, or as long as the House directs, as punishment for violating the rules.

The House adjourned at 4.43 a.m.—a sitting lasting 14 hours and 13 minutes with a two-hour supper recess—and took nine votes, all but two of them following the expected adjournment hour of 1 a.m.

Fulton and Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) led the procedural debates, arguing that after having completed the committee study of Howe's resolution, the House should not be asked to permit introduction of his bill based on it. But Speaker Rene Beaudoin, quoting a desk full of constitutional and procedural authorities, put question after question, and sustained appeal after appeal, until the bill was formally presented.

The House retained good humor and a high attendance figure all night. When members finally adjourned with the sky beginning to brighten and the birds singing, even though it was raining, there were still over 200 of the 263 voting members present.

Despite the heat of the arguments, the good humor remained. As evidence: Liberal members somewhere in the middle of the night found a big all-day sucker, five inches in diameter, and sent it across the chamber to Knowles.

The House roared with laughter when, during one vote, Howe sat at his desk behind a newspaper which had, on its back page facing the rest of the chamber, a big full-page ad printed in red advertising "My Leadership Sale."

Howe turned the paper over to see what provoked the mirth, and laughed himself.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent attended the marathon sitting closely, reading most of the time from a red leather-bound gilt-edged volume. Towards the end of the sitting, he joined in the laughs at weary sallies between government and opposition members.

He broke his silence on the measure only once. In answer to prodding from Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin Simcoe) Mr. St. Laurent said, "I would rather be silent than speak like you."

It was the first time since the Second World War that the Commons sat through the night to daybreak. But it has had longer sittings, at the tail end of sessions in which the Commons began at 11 a.m. and wound up at 3 a.m. the following day.

Howe's bill was fated for the same strenuous debate on the second reading stage. But the government gave no notice Tuesday night or this morning that it would immediately move to impose closure again. It was considered probable that the government first would allow two or three free days of debate on the principle of the measure.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

ETERNAL GOD we grieve with those who mourn today for loved ones lost in tragic mishaps. In their loss, be with them, and comfort them. Help us all to know that the appointed hour is hidden but certain; through Jesus Christ. Amen.

have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out.

"I had just time to run out and help out a few sisters who were disabled. Then the whole building seemed to go up like a torch."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb."

Lawrence Barber, one of the first to reach the scene, said he climbed a fire escape up what was left of one wall.

BANGING ON WALLS

"But I couldn't get in because of the flames," he said. "They (the nuns) were banging on the walls inside."

Mrs. Marie Flora, who operates a small restaurant about half a mile from the convent, said the plane was as fire as it went over. "The whole house shook," she said. "They didn't have a chance."

$1 MILLION LOSS

The two-year-old nunnery was destroyed and loss was estimated at $1,000,000. Only a few sections of brick wall were left standing. "It's still a total mystery," said Group Capt. Frank Miller, commander of the Uplands base. "It's unlikely the plane was on fire before the crash, despite what eye-witnesses said. It would be almost a one-in-a-million shot that it was on fire."

Verne Ayrhart, one of the rescuers, said screens on the windows hampered escape. He said he smashed in one screen and helped pull out two nuns.

"I can hear the screams yet," he said.

WORST OF ITS TYPE

The accident was the worst of its type in Canada. On April 25, 1944, an RAF four-engine Liberator bomber crashed into a Montreal tenement district, killing 16 persons.

Worst air accident in Canada occurred Jan. 26, 1950, when 44 persons were lost in the disappearance over the Yukon of a U. S. transport en route from Alaska to Texas.

Worst civilian air crash in Canada was the April 8, 1954, collision between a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star and an RCAF Harvard trainer over Moose Jaw, Sask. Thirty-seven died.

The scene at 9 a.m. today was one of devastation and mud—mud churned up in the fields around the ruins by bulldozers and other heavy clearing equipment brought in by the RCAF.

FLY OVER SITE

Two RCAF helicopters flew over the site of devastation in an effort to determine the angle and direction from which the plane made its fatal plunge.

One air force officer, who declined to be quoted by name, said a "slash" in the wreckage was visible from the air. He said this would indicate the plane crashed after a fairly steep dive.

This was borne out by an eye-witness, Mrs. Joseph Carriere, who lives across the road a few hundred yards from the scene. She said she saw the plane circling before it made its plunge and that it came down fairly steeply.

GAVE LAST RITES

Rev. Ernest Presagault, parish priest for the area, said the convent was a mass of flames when he arrived Tuesday night about 20 minutes after the crash. He gave the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to Father Ward whose burned body was found outside the building.

The air force moved in a 100-man debris crew which began removing much of the rubble by hand.

Crash Cause Unknown Says Campney

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney told the Commons today the cause of the CF-100 jet's crash at nearby Orleans last night is still unknown.

The minister visited the scene of the tragedy earlier today.

He said the plane was one of two CF-100 jets sent aloft at 9:30 p.m. to intercept an aircraft spotted by radar which was not immediately identifiable.

Mr. Campney said one of the jets returned to base under radar control. The other reported it still had excess fuel and would stay up a while longer.

That was its last radio transmission.

NUN DESCRIBES DRAMA OF DEATH

'Whole Building Seemed To Burst into Flames'

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—"It was horrible... the whole building seemed to burst into flames at once... I thought it was a bomb."

In those terse phrases Sister Louise Auguste described the grim drama of death she witnessed when an RCAF CF-100 jet fighter came screaming out of the night sky to plunge into a convalescent home of the Roman Catholic Grey Nuns near this village of 700.

Sister Auguste, a native of St. Arsen de Temisque, Que., was one of the fortunate. She escaped unhurt.

"The plane came over and then hit the middle of the roof and blew up," Sister Auguste said. "I think everyone on the top floor must have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out. It happened so fast no one can tell about it."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb. Then the fuel from the plane seemed to spread all over the roof and the whole thing was as fire when I got outside."

SHOOK STORE

Mrs. Marie Flora, who operates a small store 200 yards from the convent, said the plane went over her house so low it shook the building. Her 14-year-old daughter, Gloria, said if the plane had been 40 feet higher it would have cleared the convent and crashed into the Ottawa river beyond.

Lawrence Barber, one of the first on the scene, said the fighter plunged straight through one wall of the brick convent. Barber said he climbed a fire escape "but I couldn't get in because of the flames."

"The (nuns) were banging

Ray Rainville said one aged nun was coaxed into jumping to safety.

"I grabbed her in my arms as she jumped and went down on my back with the weight. She hurt her back seriously."

In the light of the flaming convent debris two brothers, Gaston and Armand Lapointe, made the rounds through crowds of police, firemen and spectators, asking after their sister, Mrs. Aline Lapointe, 50, of Ottawa. She was a cook at the Villa St. Louis.

"I'm pretty sure she's gone," Gaston said. "She was right where the plane came through."

"I'm praying she got out, but I don't know."

Exclusive benefits of TCP receive official recognition

In 1953, after extensive research by Shell engineers and scientists, TCP was introduced to Canadian motorists.

Now Shell has been granted a patent for TCP*. This means official recognition of the advantages offered in this Shell-developed additive.

With the granting of this patent, it means Shell gasolines will continue to be the only gasolines giving you the extra benefits of TCP.

Today, with higher octane gasolines on the market, you need TCP more than ever. Without this special additive you cannot get full power from high octane gasoline, and only Shell premium gasoline gives you both high octane and TCP.

Nine Votes During Marathon Sitting

(From Times News Services)

The government's controversial pipeline bill was introduced in Parliament just before dawn today after a tumultuous 12-hour sitting which included government-applied closure on debate and almost unprecedented delaying tactics by a determined Opposition.

Nine votes were taken during the marathon session which lasted later than any in the current Parliament elected in 1953. The House rose at 4.41 a.m.

The Liberal majority, soon after the opening Tuesday afternoon, carried through a closure motion by Trade Minister Howe which cut off debate at 1.05 a.m.—on a resolution preliminary to the bill for a huge treasury loan for the cross-Canada natural gas pipeline. At that point members adopted the resolution.

Debate on Bill Opens Thursday

The next round starts Thursday with debate on the bill and with prospects of further government closure motions to overcome dogged opposition and meet the June 7 deadline for approval of the measure.

That is the date by which a proposed treasury loan of up to $30,000,000 to Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd. must be made if the company is to be held to its commitment to build the Prairie section of its long-delayed $375,000,000 Alberta-Montreal pipeline by next Dec. 31.

The bill provides for that loan—90 per cent of the cost of the Alberta-Winnipeg section. If not repaid by next April 2 the government can take over the line.

A second major provision is for joint federal-Ontario financing of a crown company to build the $18,000,000 northern Ontario section and lease it to Trans-Canada.

The Liberal majority stood alone in backing the closure motion, carried 122 to 72, on a standing vote. But on the eight other votes it was supported by Social Crediters and two independents.

Carl Nickle (PC—Calgary South) who has split from his party's stand against the pipeline proposal, went home after the fourth vote around 2 a.m. after backing the Liberals on all but two divisions. These were on the government's closure motion at the start of the sitting and on an opposition challenge of a ruling by committee chairman W. A. Robinson.

Conservative and CCF parties, linked in their bitter opposition to the measure, voted together each time in the minority.

The pipeline resolution was adopted in committee on a 156-to-58 vote at 1.05 a.m. When the sitting's final vote was taken 3½ hours later the count was 156 to 55—only three members had left the free-swinging fight to get some sleep.

The debate itself, preceding the prolonged procedural wrangling at the end, saw a succession of 23 members speak. Their time was limited to 20 minutes each under closure rules.

CHALLENGED TO SPEAK

Prime Minister St. Laurent came under opposition criticism, with challenges to enter the debate and to take the issue to the people in an election. He sat through the entire debate and said nothing.

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) said the government is afraid to call an election. It could not put closure on the people. "There's more than us against you in Canada tonight," Mr. Rowe shouted at Liberal benches.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the pipeline measure was being forced through by closure because a free and sovereign Parliament had been bound by the government's commitment to deliver the loan by June 7.

Liberals defended the closure. John Dore (L—Vegreville) said the opposition "asked for it" because of their obvious obstructionist tactics.

Mrs. Ann Shipley (L—Timiskaming) said closure would limit filibustering. Opposition members would make the same speeches only six or seven times instead of 20 or 30.

DISPUTE PROPOSAL

On the issue of the pipeline proposal itself—apart from closure—debate was just as vigorous.

Conservative and CCF members called it a sell-out to United States interests controlling Trans-Canada. Conservatives demanded further search for a Canadian-controlled method of building the line. The CCF plumped for public ownership.

Liberals argued that Trans-Canada is the only agency which can start the long-delayed line this year, that the company has an option on the only available pipe and that defeat of the proposal might delay a start on construction until 1958.

Taxes Soar 370% In Rio de Janeiro

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Rio de Janeiro's municipal business tax has been raised 370 per cent over last year. In many instances the tax now amounts to as much as the total annual rent. The increase was one of many imposed by the federal and local governments to finance wage boosts of up to 70 per cent given government employees.

Oakalla Rioters Charged

Appear Today In Police Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges of "forcible confinement" were laid Tuesday against three inmates who held a guard prisoner for six hours in Oakalla prison last week.

Robert Tremblay, Marcel Frenette and Charles Talbot, sentenced recently to 20 years in prison for attempted murder, are scheduled to appear in police court today in suburban Burnaby.

Municipal prosecutor William Stirling said the charges were laid against the trio on instructions of the attorney-general's office.

The three men are charged under a section of the Criminal Code which makes it unlawful to "confine, imprison or forcibly seize another person," Mr. Stirling said.

The prosecution arises out of the seizure of Oakalla guard Ernest Loveless by three inmates in the prison barber shop May 7.

A razor was held to his throat and a pair of barber's shears to the back of his neck by the inmates.

The threat to the guard's life during a six-hour ordeal in the barber shop came within a few hours of the time, Tremblay, Frenette and Talbot lost their appeal against the 20-year sentence for the attempted murder of Thomas Kinna last fall.

The charge carries a maximum sentence of five years' imprisonment.

NICKLE SPLITS WITH PARTY

Tory 'Expediency' Irks Alberta MP

OTTAWA (CP)—Carl Nickle sharpened his dispute with Progressive Conservative colleagues over the cross-country natural gas pipeline by charging that they are placing political expediency before Canada's best interests on the issue.

"I deeply regret that I am at variance with my Conservative colleagues in this House on the issue . . ." he said Tuesday as he supported the Liberal government's pipeline proposal in the Commons.

"But where the application of political expediency is contrary to what I honestly believe are Canada's best interests, I have no alternative but to disagree."

The parting of Mr. Nickle, member for Calgary South, and his party on the pipeline issue was emphasized even as he rose to speak. Conservative spokesman Howard Green, member for Vancouver Quadra, sought to have Margaret Aitken (PC—York Humber), who rose simultaneously, allowed to speak instead of Mr. Nickle.

But when chairman E. T. Applewhite indicated Mr. Nickle's time in the closure-shortened debate would be charged unofficially to the Liberals instead of the Conservatives, Mr. Green withdrew his objections.

Social Credit leader Low, speaking later, predicted that when the next election rolls around, Mr. Nickle will find that he has "killed himself in Alberta."

"The people of Alberta are going to question the position he has taken."

But Mr. Nickle had indicated previously in an interview that he does not plan to seek re-election to the Commons.

As the sitting opened, Trade Minister Howe moved a closure, limiting debate on the government resolution preliminary to the bill. Mr. Nickle voted with the Liberals on pre-debate procedural issues raised by the Conservatives and CCF in attempts to block the government's proposal. But he supported his colleagues on the closure vote, which the government won 122 to 73.

Mr. Nickle, an expert on Canada's oil and gas development, said he supports the government plan, not as the best solution, but because the only alternatives would involve more long delays, higher costs, a further denial of industrial and population growth, particularly in western Canada, and a far heavier burden on the whole Canadian economy.

A B.C. Election?

PREMIER BENNETT IS MAKING all the familiar noises of a politician on the way to the polling booth. His sight-seeing tours continue in many parts of the province. At every one-night stand he makes a "non-partisan" speech obviously designed to appeal to the voters. The promises of local expenditures multiply day by day. These seem to be the authentic signs of an election before the year's end.

There is no valid reason for an early election but an unanswerable argument against it. No government living under the shadow of the gravest sort of allegation has the right to seek a new mandate from the people until its honor has been vindicated and the questions raised by the Sommers case have been answered. Otherwise the people, not knowing the truth about these affairs, must vote in the dark. Is that Mr. Bennett's purpose?

He brushes off all inquiries on that score, says he is too occupied with the public business to waste his time on party politics but finds ample leisure to enter the Saskatchewan election and is busily laying the foundation of an election here. Perhaps he has not made up his mind on the date but obviously is preparing for any eventuality, as circumstances seem to dictate.

All the public knows is that the Sommers case has been indefinitely stalled in the courts. At the present rate of progress the legal processes now under way cannot possibly come to trial before the late autumn and may not be tried this year. No one seems to be interested in pushing it forward and Mr. Bennett ignores entirely the fact that his government is under the most serious indictment.

His attitude in this matter is difficult indeed to understand. It was to be expected that a premier whose personal honor has never been questioned, would insist on vindicating the administrative honor of his government with the least possible delay and pushing the issue to a decision, as he could easily have done by appointing a commission of inquiry.

Instead, the charges against the government are left to languish in the law's delay and Mr. Bennett is conducting a preliminary election campaign apparently without a care on his mind or any shadow on his government.

How long must this gaudy charade continue? Only Mr. Bennett can end it by announcing definitely, as he certainly is obligated to do, that he will not seek a public vote of confidence before it has been earned in the courts. The public has a right to demand that announcement.

From Fulton to Aachen

TEN YEARS AGO SIR WINSTON Churchill delivered his famous speech at Fulton to warn the free world against the revival of Russian imperialism. At first he was misunderstood and widely criticized, but events as usual confirmed his judgment. The rearmament of the West, which may well have prevented a third world war or a surrender to Communism, can be dated in retrospect from Fulton.

At Aachen a few days ago Sir Winston delivered another speech which seems to mark a profound change in his thinking. As at Fulton, he spoke as a private member of the British Parliament but with all the unequalled prestige of his experience and the familiar sweep of historic instinct.

Just as he foresaw the tragic change in Russia's wartime policy of friendship with the West, Sir Winston now sees a growing reversal of Russia's postwar strategy, sees, indeed, nothing less than the beginnings of a new Russia. Therefore, he says, the West, recognizing this change, must make a new approach to Russia's new rulers.

The Fulton speech was stark and definite. The Aachen speech is general and vague. What, for example, does Sir Winston mean when he says that Russia should be invited to join NATO? How is an organization erected among free nations to meet the challenge of Russian imperialism to survive if its only possible enemy joins it? Is it conceivable that Russia would join it on tolerable terms? And how can the West risk the dissolution of its defenses until it knows beyond question that Russian strategy has been actually reversed and is no longer dangerous?

All these questions and many others confront the free world governments in the wake of the Aachen speech and it is far too early to answer them. The first reaction in London, Washington and Ottawa obviously is sceptical.

Britain, the United States, Canada and all the other NATO partners desire as much as Sir Winston a reconciliation with Russia, an end of the world struggle and a period of assured peace. But what assurance can they count on when it comes from men who loyally served Stalin's policy (though they repudiate it today), who have not relaxed their grip on the conquered satellites, who are adventuring in the Middle East and vigorously penetrating the Far East?

When Churchill speaks, the whole world listens with respect, but for the moment the Aachen speech must increase the difficulties of NATO, which is in danger of falling to pieces anyway.

The Commercial Influence

THE LETTER OF A DOMINION Drama Festival official urging readers to buy the products of a distillery which provides financial support for the festival may have one beneficial result. It may have pointed up the need for a more nationally-based system of aid for this important annual artistic event.

Obviously the letter, on stationery which included the name of the Governor-General, was an error. The Queen's representative can in no way be associated with commercial advertising, and Mr. Massey was quite right in demanding a retraction. The matter has now been satisfactorily cleared up by a second letter, and vice-regal patronage can continue to be extended to the festival. But, as Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested in the Commons, it would be advisable to find some wider basis of support for so important a national undertaking.

Squeezing Out the Informer

WITH FAR LESS FANFARE than the McCarthy incidents of recent memory, the United States has been tidying house in relation to individuals once automatically suspected under extremist security procedures.

A White House committee has reaffirmed the point that "The proper objectives of government in sponsoring basic research will be best served by concentration on scientific competence alone." That means that a researcher can make discoveries of value to humanity whether he believes in monarchy, republicanism or socialism.

And the Coast Guard has announced new regulations applying to merchant seamen which recognize the U.S. Federal Appeal Court indictment of the use of "secret informers, whisperers and talebearers." Under the new system an accused may confront his accusers.

The moves, made quietly, reflect a return to due process and sanity. If they are not loudly applauded by democratic friends of the United States, they are at least warmly approved.

The Voice Is the Voice of—

TORONTO IS AMAZED BY A meadow lark that sings like a cardinal and presumably learned the red bird's music from cardinal foster parents after its own had died.

How unusual this change of song may be is a matter for ornithologists. But there is a minor parallel on this coast.

Here the owners of canaries enter their birds in singing festivals and competent judges award points as points are supposed to be awarded for the Carous or Crosbys of the bird world. But lest environment impair the chances of local feathered songsters, the judges make allowance for what is called "seagull screech." The gulls here are a bad influence on the canaries.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

THE other night I switched on the radio and heard some Optimism being ladled out to me by Dr. J. F. Leddie. I hope I have spelt his surname correctly... my radio doesn't spell very well, though at least it does deal in words, which is more than a TV set does.

Dr. Leddie is Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at the University of Saskatchewan. If I understood Dr. Leddie correctly, and if I can read my pencilled notes, he said that we are always being told this is an age of conformity. But (said he) all ages were ages of conformity. We are told this is an age of bad taste, but all ages were ages of bad taste. Nothing is any worse today than it ever was... we just worry about it more.

Brock

If we feel melancholy, that is merely the effect of age in our own decaying bodies. If we seem thoughtless, it is just because we are trying to digest all the new ideas we've thought up in the immediate past. If we crack down on the individual, it is just because we are trying to create equal rights for all. If we interfere when we should (by older standards) refrain from meddling, or if we remain inert when perhaps another age would have acted, all this just means that we are outgrowing our old European culture and are now Enlarging Our Outlook.

In short, Dr. Leddie was feeling pretty good. I should have been feeling pretty good myself, because it isn't often you hear this kind of late Victorian optimism so clearly expressed... this confidence and cocksureness and sense of well-being made me feel I was my grandfather setting off for college, or my grandmother congratulating herself on having been born into a world now free of ignorance and superstition.

I should have been delighted to hear this period piece. Instead of which, I meanly took out a pencil. When I brandish a pencil at my radio, it is a vote of no confidence. When we live in an even more wonderful age than the one we've got now, perhaps we'll have radios that will snatch my pencil away from me, telling me to sit still and digest ideas.

About all ages being ages of conformity... well, for one thing, it makes quite a difference what you're conforming to... if one age conforms to state worship and another to private rights, you can call them both conformist, if you wish, but you can't claim that public opinion exerts the same pressure in each type of conformity. Again, and in a somewhat opposite way but with an equally wide gap between two conformities, an age that derives an inner peace from respecting tradition is the exact opposite of an age that creates an inner guilt by hating tradition, yet you can call both attitudes conformity at one stage of history or another.

By the way, I didn't invent that crackpot theory about an inner guilt from flouting traditional morality... Dr. Jung discovered it while healing crackpots... and as I may have mentioned the other day, this in turn leads to the interesting implication that a man may be sick because he is a crook, sometimes, instead of being a crook because he is sick.

In any event, I do not think Dr. Leddie can seriously maintain that we have as many eccentrics and individuals today as we once had. We have far fewer, and for a number of reasons. One huge reason is that we are in an age of conformity... today in the United States four men out of five are working for somebody else, which is a proportion your grandfather would have found incredible and unbearable. Further, an employee today has to conform to an infinitely greater degree than did an employee even in our own youth, or he will flunk his deep psychology tests and find himself unemployed.

As for bad taste being present in all ages... yes, certainly. But I like to think there are certain absolute standards of taste that are not a mere matter of taste (if I may so express myself, and without going into aesthetics, I'd like to say that we have departed from these absolute standards in a big way, during the past few generations, so that our instinctive taste is less reliable than it was (to put it mildly). I am not just being a gloomy old centurion when I suggest that craftsmanship is hardly what it was. And without the craftsman, where does that leave the buyer? In any event, an age that even tolerates such things as drive-in churches and sexy advertising, to name only two out of a dozen contemporary phenomena... such an age could be called tasteless without stretching the meaning of words too murderously. Correct me if I am right.

Well, I have only barely started to say what I think of Dr. Leddie's opinions, and here I am at the end of my space. But that's all right, I am at the end of my patience, too. I have outgrown my European suavity and have become a wild bad naughty Apache. Which may or may not enlarge my outlook, but it certainly increases my adrenalin.

May 16, 1896—It is stated that Sir Donald A. Smith, who left for England today as Canadian High Commissioner, will shortly be elevated to the peerage as Lord Glenora. (He was made a Baron Strathcona.)

May 16, 1916—The Victoria Jitney-men's Association decided today to oppose the proposed Esquimalt municipal by-law regulating jitneys, especially the furnishing of a surety bond of $5,000.

As Our Readers See It

Basic Imbalance

I was deeply impressed with the following picture compressed into a single paragraph at the core of your editorial "An Agonizing Re-appraisal" of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO): "The whole economic sub-structure of the military alliance must be unbalanced and therefore weak so long as the United States insists on exporting far more than it imports, thereby creating a dollar shortage, or the constant threat of a shortage among its partners; so long as the partners are divided into two separate currency blocs; and so long as the living standards of North America are immeasurably higher than those of Britain and Western Europe."

I am satisfied that the stubborn failure of the West's "money masters"—a term which I make bold to use, as it reflects the thought in this reader's mind—to maintain the status of the above "two separate currency blocs," has given the foes of freedom most of their post-war opportunities.

It largely explains good old J.B.'s $372 million trade deficit with Canada in 1955, and certainly has made the job of maintaining our position in the U.K. market, for agricultural surpluses—not wheat alone—infinite more difficult than was necessary.

At the moment, as has been made crystal clear in the news and editorial columns, the primary producers have been carrying the burden, in terms of constantly declining net incomes, while their brethren in the secondary industries have been calling for (and usually getting) more money and less working hours. I do not believe that this imbalance can endure.

On the Beach

I note the beautification along Marine Drive between Cook Street and the cemetery has been almost completed. It seems to me that something could be done which would be of great benefit, namely, providing access to the beach at various points. At present there are one or two rude pathways which do not look very safe. It is possible to sit on the beach and escape the wind which almost constantly blows at this point.

I hope those in charge of this work will carefully consider this suggestion.

THE OTTAWA SCENE

By VICTOR MACKIE

The Battle Begins

PROGRESSIVE Conservative and CCF members of the opposition have lost no time in pointing up the irony of a situation where a cabinet that wrestled and wrangled over the pipeline policy, demanding quick approval of that policy. Both the opposition groups made it plain by their preliminary delaying tactics that they intend to fight the passage of the government's pipeline bill through every stage. But the Liberal members of the caucus behind closed doors were informed that the debate would end about June 1. Clearly the government had no intention of allowing the minority groups in the Commons unduly to delay the enactment of the pipeline loan measure.

Mackie

Green Light

The government under the terms of its loan agreement with Trans-Canada Pipelines has set June 7 as the deadline by which the loan of up to $80,000,000 must become available to the pipeline company. If Parliament has failed to approve the legislation by that time, then the agreement becomes inoperative and there will be no start made this year on the prairie leg of the all-Canadian gas pipeline. Consequently the government is determined to ram the legislation through the House, despite every effort by the opposition to block its passage. The result is expected to produce one of the most dramatic situations in Canadian parliamentary history.

Closure

The answer insofar as the Government is concerned appears to be use of the closure rule. It has seldom been invoked in this country to halt marathon debates. In fact, it has been resorted to only five times since confederation. It was last applied in 1932 by the Bennett administration. It is only utilized by governments as a last desperate measure to close off parliamentary debate.

First Applied

The closure motion was first applied in a Canadian parliament on April 23, 1913. Opposition forces at that time were attempting to stop passage of a bill to provide $35,000,000 for the construction of a number of dreadnaughts for the Royal Navy when Marine Minister J. D. Hazen, a member of the Borden government, moved for closure.

Closure motions were also introduced and applied in 1917 by the Borden government; in 1921 by the Meighen Unionist government; in 1926 by the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, a member of the King government, and in 1932 by the Bennett government.

Liberal Application

Closure has only been utilized by a Liberal administration on one occasion in the past. That was in 1926. Parliament had opened its session with Mr. Mackenzie King having no seat in the Commons. He had been defeated in the 1925 general election. The plan of the government was to adjourn for several weeks immediately after completing the derstand, that that body be made absolutely free from governmental and from parliamentary control of the manner in which they use money provided by the taxpayers. They would have all the funds they deem necessary, and spend them in preparing and giving the programs they wish, without supervision by the elected representatives of the public whose servants they are.

They do not want the service to be "under the thumb of politicians," they say, meaning under control of our elected authorities. The people of Canada are surely of a calibre and taste to fit them to make their own choice; moreover in a democracy they have the right and the duty to do so.

Education, and culture, and even entertainment, are matters too vital to be left entirely in the hands of alleged experts, without adequate supervision on the part of those concerned—who foot the bill. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom, especially now.

FRANCIS E. BROWNE.

Combination

May I be permitted a small portion of your valued columns to ask why the bright (?) boys of the City Hall have not considered a combined City Hall and Auditorium. It would be the simplest way of settling all this controversy. An auditorium in the centre with the outside of the shell containing city offices—there would be plenty of room and to spare. The rear could house the fire and police departments if so desired. Wake up you so-called city planners and get going on this project.

Housing Suggestion

Recently former Alderman Christie in discussing the plight of our older citizens referred to an hotel at the corner of our main street that has been empty for years. I am informed it is owned by an American variety store for future expansion. At present it is an eyesore becoming more rundown and dirty looking in the upper stories and certainly not a credit to the city.

There must be many small rooms with running water and also many bathrooms, with possibly elevator service. Could the owners not be approached with some plan to allow this to be used as cheap rental (if only enough to cover overhead, repairs and decoration) for some of those living in squalor now—perhaps a service club could sponsor some such scheme. No bus problem there.

Those who have lived alone for years realize how much it means to be independent for as long as possible.

The Battle Begins

Throne Speech so that Mr. King could contest a by-election. However, the opposition sought to block this plan by extending debate on the address and finally Mr. Lapointe invoked closure.

Cocky

The Liberals in the present House as they prepared for the long-drawn-out fight to pass the pipeline loan measure were cocky confident that the Canadian public would support the government in its fight. They are convinced that most Canadians will see the need for a start being made as soon as possible, certainly this year, on the western section of the pipeline. They are encouraged by the fact that Premier Frost of Ontario has come out on the side of the federal Liberals in this fight.

The Liberals believe that they will have succeeded in achieving two objectives once the bill is passed: (1) to get the western section built this year, and (2) to drive a wedge between Opposition Leader Drew and Ontario's Conservative Premier Frost.

Dismayed

Premier Frost's stand on the all-Canadian pipeline question has dismayed federal Conservatives. The situation wherein Ontario's Conservative premier appeared to be staunchly supporting the federal Liberal government's pipeline policies finally drove the staunchly Conservative Ottawa Journal to rap Premier Frost editorially.

Said the Journal: "What Mr. Frost was doing in this Alberta gas line business in the first place has never been too clear; his justification of Ontario's need for gas was not convincing. But what is harder to understand is why, when the thing got into what somebody has described as a 'holy mess,' he didn't wash his hands of it. Because he didn't, but continued to string along with Mr. Howe, even when Mr. Howe seemingly was not telling him the score, suggests that a few parliamentary lightning bolts around Mr. Frost's head would be only justice."

Delight

Liberal backbenchers can be excused for their enthusiastic reaction to the announcement that the federal Cabinet had finally hammered out a pipeline policy for submission to Parliament. The performance of the front bench on the Government side, while the policy was being evolved, was anything but heartening to the backbenchers.

They were worried about reports that first one Cabinet minister had threatened to resign and then another had indicated he might walk out if some satisfactory policy were not found. The fact that the Cabinet came through the crisis intact was a great relief to the average Liberal member who knows only what the Government wants to tell him when it occasionally calls a caucus.

The Devil's Due

The Old Lamplighter

LONDON—Life in St. Johns Wood . . . Yesterday, in regard to innovations in the new Empress of Britain, I mentioned that some of us are not always in favor of what is termed Progress. I feel that Change does not necessarily mean Improvement.

Reyburn

Well, here I am right on our street amidst a group of people who apparently hold the same view, and very strongly. Last night I attended a protest meeting, called by one of our neighbors. Object of the protest was the new street lighting that's being installed.

Now, Cavendish avenue came into existence a hundred-odd years ago. That's not old as things go in this part of the world but the period in which these houses were built—Regency—was rather a good one as regards architecture. This street has, to coin a phrase, old world charm. The householder kicked up quite a fuss a year or so ago when the borough resurfaced the road and relaid the sidewalk with neat concrete slabs.

The sidewalk formerly would have qualified as a crazy pavement, with uneven paving stones edged with gravel that became a tangle of wild grass before each summer was out. Walking along it was a hazard for at any time you were likely to trip and sprain an ankle. But it had Charm and the Cavendish avenue citizens hated to see it converted into just another city sidewalk. But their protests were to no avail and the borough went ahead with Progress.

The red letterbox at the head of the street is an antiquated affair that leans over at a rakish angle. The borough wanted to replace it with a fine new one. But, protested the locals, the letterbox has VR on it—one of the few left in England. We don't want a modern one with E I R on it. For all we know, this might be the original letterbox erected in Victorian times when stamps were invented. They won that fight.

But now the borough is trying to bring the street lighting up to date. Cavendish avenue is lit by gas lamp standards converted to electricity. In movies and in pictures of old London you've seen these wrought iron posts with a glassed-in lamp box on the top and a metal arm jutting out for the lamplighter's ladder to rest on. The borough intends to scrap these and the modern moulded concrete standards with efficient sodium flame lighting units that will take their place have already been placed in position ready to be hooked up.

When I lived on Cayuga avenue in Port Credit we held protest meetings to get better lighting. That's a usual thing in Canada. But not here. Not on Cavendish avenue, anyway. Last night's protest meeting, at which all householders were unanimous, was called to fight the borough's efforts to give the street better lighting.

These converted gas lamp standards have Old World Charm. In over a hundred years no one has ever been killed in a traffic accident or raped on Cavendish avenue, so they must be doing their lighting job well enough. How, under these glaring new lights, would the maids be able to have a good-night smooch with their boy friends in the gateways when they come home from their nights off?

The arguments for retention of the old streetlamps are overwhelming. But the mayor says the decision has been taken and the borough is going to go ahead.

However, the Cavendish avenue citizens have an ace up their sleeve. One of the householders happens to be one of Britain's leading barristers. They'll fight this thing to the High Courts, if necessary!

YOUR HEALTH

Slipped Disc in the Neck

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

Some persons ask me if they should rush into an operation for a supposed slipped disc in the neck. Naturally, without having the patient thoroughly examined by a good x-ray man and a good neurologist, I cannot venture an opinion. All I know is that in my own practice I have never seen a patient who, I thought, had a slipped disc in his neck. There probably should be such a disease, and cases have been reported, but because I do not see them, my impression is that they must be rare.

Dr. Alvarez

Usually, I think the symptoms complained of are due purely to a destructive arthritis of several of the vertebrae in the neck. I know, from personal experience, that with such a severe arthritis, from time to time distressing pain or burning can appear, usually just above a shoulder. But usually after a while this pain goes away even without any treatment.

I, personally, would not have an operation for a "slipped disc" in my neck unless I had very definite symptoms indicating the pressure of a disc on my spinal cord, or some of the nerves leaving it. I would want to have a very positive opinion from a neurologist in whose wisdom and conservatism I had great trust.

MEDICAL ADVISORS IN COURT

I just finished reading a remarkable book, called "Four Square," by Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, an able psychiatrist, who for many years following 1917, was medical officer and advisor to the Supreme Bench in Baltimore city. In 1917, one of the police magistrates, an able man, would often drop in at the great Phipps clinic to get help from the psychiatrists on the problem of dealing with a criminal who had just come before him. Often the judge would have a hunch that the man was not sane, but not having had a psychiatric training, he could not be sure.

From the conversations Dr. Oliver had with this judge, he decided to spend more than half of his day helping the police courts with their many medical problems. Eventually, the judges so appreciated this impartial help that whenever there was any question of the mental condition of an accused person, the man was quickly referred to the advisory group. Either the defence or the prosecution could refer the man, and soon both the defence and the prosecution attorneys learned to abide by the decision given them by their friends, the psychiatrists.

Is it not remarkable that when an experiment like this worked so well it was not quickly adopted by all the courts of this land? All my life, as I have read the accounts of court trials, I have marveled that when a man accused of murder was obviously psychotic, he was likely to be quickly condemned and soon executed. The reason for this was that, being of unsound mind, the man was particularly brutal to his victim and completely callous and without regret afterward. It was this callousness that got him hanged so quickly. Actually, if the people in the community and the judge and jury had had the slightest knowledge of psychiatry they would have seen that the man had acted insanely.

All this does not mean that I want to coddle or set free the criminally insane. Our mental hospitals are not designed well enough to hold the criminally insane. These men easily escape from antiquated buildings, and hence they should be kept in prisons. But it is sad that our courts are often highly inconsistent in their handling of the really insane, and of those murderers who want to escape by pleading insanity.

TINGLING OR NUMB LEGS

Persons ask what they should do when their legs tingle or feel numb or weak. They should go immediately to a good physician and have their blood tested to make sure that they are not developing what we doctors call a primary or pernicious form of anemia. Such persons can usually be tremendously helped, almost overnight, by injections of vitamin B12. These persons often tell me that they know of a relative who died years ago of anemia. Often my patient turned grey early, perhaps in her 20's or 30's. In case of doubt, I pump the stomach and test the gastric contents for hydrochloric acid. If the person has no acid in his stomach and very little juice he may well be a candidate for a primary anemia. If he has plenty of gastric juice he is not likely ever to get a bad anemia, even if there is the tendency to this running in the family.

Trade Group Would Protect Fish Grounds

The Pacific Northwest Trade Association here Tuesday took steps to halt possibility of a "Central American fish company" moving into salmon fishing waters off the coasts of British Columbia, Washington and Oregon.

In a strongly worded resolution at the close of the PNAT convention here, delegates called on the governments of Canada and the United States to say "no" to the bid.

The company involved was believed to be from Peru.

Delegates termed the move a definite "threat" to the Canadian and U.S. salmon fishery.

It was deemed unwarranted because the northwest fishery "has been developed solely by the fishermen of our countries."

Birch Planting For Anniversary

Any 50th anniversary is worthy of some kind of celebration.

A half century may seem a long period to the very young, but I'm sure the time has passed quickly enough for both myself and the municipality of Saanich.

Saanich has too few trees in its residential areas, and so it is my ambition this week to plant a group which should add a corner of beauty commemorating this anniversary for the two of us.

We have ornamental flowering shrubs and plants on the place and a half dozen other slow growing trees suitable to a half acre. But now I'm really going to celebrate by planting a group of birch.

My memories of birch are from the Muskoka woods north of Toronto, where their delicacy and airy grace are a feature of

Labor Group 'Pink' Float Kicked Out

The National Federation of Labor Youth will have no float in the Victoria Day parade Monday.

Greater Victoria Celebrations' Association Tuesday endorsed an earlier stand barring participation of the allegedly Communist-front organization after the federation appealed.

The float was to carry maps of Canada, shaded pink, and signs reading: "Canada Blushed at Her Olympic Standing . . . Spending $10,000,000 for Sports and Recreation Now."

Association vice-chairman Magistrate A. I. Thomas said the float was rejected as "it was felt that owing to their beliefs, their ideology, the parade was not the proper place for the float."

Anti-Rabies Shot Rule for Pets in National Parks

VANCOUVER—Pet owners visiting Canada's national parks this year are required to have an anti-rabies vaccination certificate for each animal accompanying them.

The certificate in each case must show that the dog, cat or other pet has been vaccinated against rabies within the 12 months immediately preceding the date of entering the park. Parks are game sanctuaries and this move is to protect the fauna.

The regulation will be in force in the following parks. Mount Revelstoke, Glacier, Kootenay and Yoho in British Columbia; Banff, Jasper, Waterton Lakes and Elk Island in Alberta; Prince Albert in Saskatchewan; and Riding Mountain in Manitoba.

Rhee Returned, But Margin Down 21%

SEOUL (AP)—Doughty old Syngman Rhee has won his expected third term as South Korea's president, but strong opposition cut his vote to only about 55 per cent of the total ballots cast in Tuesday's election.

The 81-year-old Conservative, South Korea's only president since the republic was established in 1948, polled 72.6 per cent of the total vote in the 1952 election.

In the separate vice-presidential ballots, Rhee's running mate, Lee Ki Poong, today was trailing the Democratic party candidate, Chang Myun, a former ambassador to the United States. However, Lee was still given a good chance to pull ahead in the rural counting.

Because of Rhee's advanced age, many think the next vice-president may well turn out to be the old man's presidential heir.

Rhee piled up a big lead in the country districts. In the big cities of Seoul and Taegu he trailed the combined total of his opponents.

E YADA DI SHI ITO SPEAKS

Medium Says Space Ships, Men Frequent Visitors to Earth

By TONY DICKASON

Mark Probert emphatically asserts flying saucers are not a publicity stunt by Wedge wood or Spode.

Mark, from San Diego, is a medium, and a deep one. He told a public meeting Tuesday night in the Dominion Hotel about spacemen and their saucers.

Space ships have landed on the world "many times," he said. Governments know of this but are a little leary about frightening Sadie McSlug in the pickle factory if disclosures are unveiled.

"Space is not empty," said Mr. Probert. "There are living beings in it."

That's where the saucers come from—not other planets, but from space.

"You live in three dimensions, but there are other frequencies of matter that you know nothing about," he said during the two-hour session.

JUST INQUISITIVE

Spacemen land here because they are noisy. They want to know how long the earth will last, and trash like that.

Mr. Probert, 49, is a quick bunny-like man who, when not being a medium, is an extremely likeable person. He seems as sincere as could be expected.

The medium-media started in 1942 just a few months after his marriage. Wife Irene was awakened by Mark's talk, which was in foreign languages.

So they got a chap from a university who knew about such things and he said, sure enough, Mark was talking in East Indian, Chinese and accents of various esoteric areas.

Next step, he consulted a metaphysician. There was no doubt about it: Mark was trance, but good.

This language business, he found later, was an attempt by

"the teachers" to speak through him on matters of science, philosophy, metaphysics and occultism.

This was what was going on Tuesday night. The teachers were teaching.

The medium does not deliver personal messages, or dabble with such things as religion. "His work is all educational," said wife Irene.

Mr. Probert takes the casual attitude regarding his work. "I don't expect anyone to believe anything as I don't know what to believe myself."

It was suggested he might check a reputable psychiatrist. To this he answered with a disarming smile and "No, I don't want to stop hearing the voices. It's my work."

The voices won't answer on stocks, horse races, gold or market fluctuations. "My teachers won't be involved in those things."

One of his informers is a man named E Yada Di Shi Ito who lived, according to Yada, about 5,000 years ago in India.

All in all, Mr. Probert seems a little amused by the whole situation.

Britain Hopes Far-Flung Fleet Of Freighters Will Cash In

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Treasury officials hope Britain's world-wide merchant fleet will earn more foreign money this year.

In totting up the balance of payments, Britain counts the earnings of the shipping services abroad as "invisible exports" and thus one of the important single contributions to the foreign currency kitty.

Last year, with home demand booming, Britain had to hire foreign ships to help carry imports to United Kingdom ports. This cost £30,000,000 more last year than in 1954.

"A hard knock," said Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan.

EXPECT IMPROVEMENT

Britain had a difficult time as it was, paying bills for foreign goods without having to put up extra money to get them here.

"A treasury spokesman expects 'some improvement' this year. 'After all, if we don't import as much, we won't have to foot such a big shipping bill.'"

In 1954, Britain spent £257,000,000 on shipping and earned £407,000,000, giving a surplus of £150,000,000 for the balance of payments. But last year, Britain spent £337,000,000 and earned £457,000,000, leaving a surplus of only £120,000,000.

This £30,000,000 drop is explained this way. Foreign ships cost more. British tramp ships were attracted to the U.K. import trade instead of doing foreign jobs, and tramp shipping rates rose through the year.

British ships, carrying more than a quarter of the world's seaborne traffic, ply every Commonwealth route and call at most major ports. Although smaller in tonnage, the British fleet ranks as the world's largest active merchant navy. Much of the United States merchant fleet, world's largest in tonnage totals, is inactive.

But a new danger is facing the tramp steamers that carry the British flag around the world.

In post-war years, the "flags of convenience" fleets of such tax-free countries as Panama, Liberia, Honduras and Costa Rica have grown surprisingly. Recently, shipowners from 16 traditional maritime countries met in London to discuss this new threat to their livelihood.

As a result, several large British shipping firms are seriously examining the idea of establishing new companies in parts of the Commonwealth where taxation is low, such as Bermuda.

Shell Tanker Company has already done this, operating 14 British-built tankers out of Bermuda, through an associate company established there.

The chairman of Cunard, Col. D. Bates, says if his company had ground to such a survey, says that been registered under a flag of convenience it would have saved more than £14,000,000 in taxation since 1949.

A survey is being prepared by the International Chamber of shipping, to show the implications to world shipping operations of the tax-free fleets.

The Times, explaining the back-ground to such a survey, says that have U.K. registration because of lower operating costs.

AROUND and ABOUT With JO HEALY

THE ROLLICKING DAYS of the early west, of spurred and booted cowboys indolently leaning at the bar, of a barrel of rye, complete with tin cup for free drinks, and a shot-gun-toting hostess—all these pictures and more must have ghosted through the memories of many a pioneer British Columbian with the recent news of the burning of the old 70 Mile House.

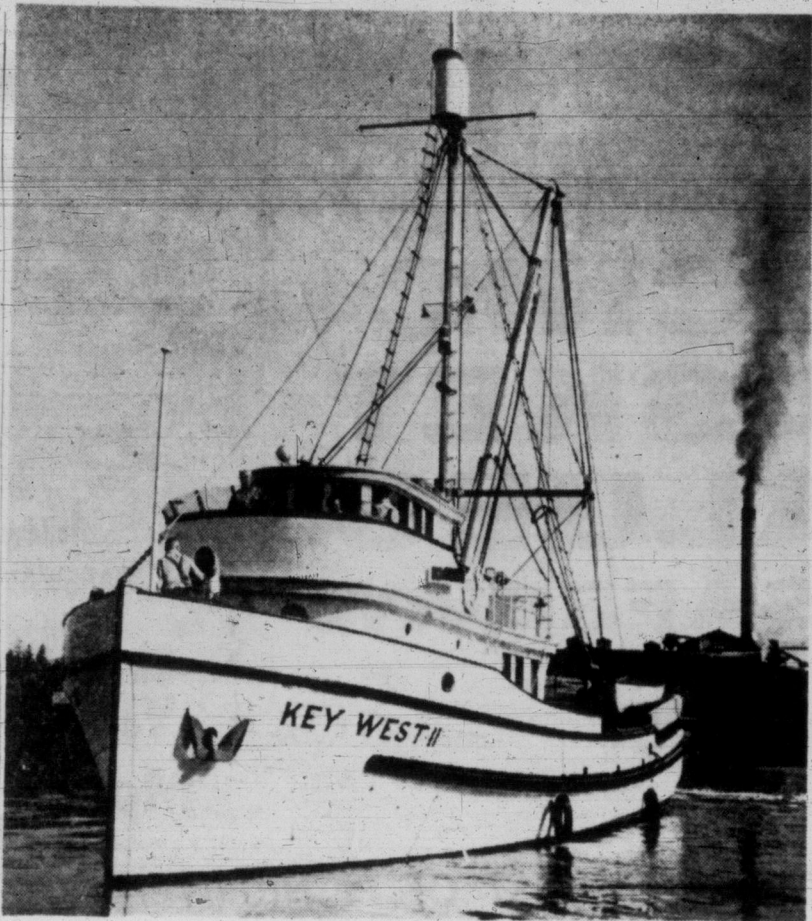

Isat in on the reminiscences of a couple who had marched in the Cariboo back in depression days and who knew the old place well. Their ranch was a mere 20 miles from 70 Mile House, making them, in those days, very close neighbors indeed to the proprietors of the famous old landmark.

I LISTENED WITH DE-light to their stories of the old days, some in which they had participated, some they knew from hearsay from when the hostel was first built. Those were the days when the freight wagonners carried guns as protection against hard-riding bandits who lurked along the perilous route. And the era of the brass-trimmed bar, and the rye-keg that stood unattended, its contents waiting to be dipped out in the community tin cup by those thirsty souls too hard up to buy the superior beverage at the bar.

Originally built by the Boyd family and passed from father to sons, the business had been taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Matt Porter, proprietors at the time of which the narrators were familiar.

MRS. MATT PORTER (I HEARD) was a big woman with a big laugh and a heart great enough to encompass the world. I heard of the many deeds of kindness perpetrated by this motherly person in the two-story log building over which she presided; of the long-planked table in the massive dining room that groaned beneath its weight of hearty victuals—not for the benefit only of family and guests, but for the broke and hungry who came to the door, so that in the ugly depression it was not unusual for 28 or 30 "extras" to sit at the table for days-of-meals gratis to the more unfortunate.

I WAS TOLD OF THE GAY PARTIES where music was provided into the small hours by traditional cowboy fiddles and guitars; of one lad who played his guitar and sang authentic western ballads for a non-stop 18 hours. Of the ease with which the genial hostess quelled the over-riotous and of the shotgun that she brought into evidence for the more obstreperous, and of the assurance that they had that she would use it if necessary.

Big Seiner Leaves Chemainus To Probe Mysteries of Salmon

By MURRAY POSKITT
Times Chemainus Correspondent

CHEMAINUS—Key West II, one of the largest fishing boats on the west coast, left here on the weekend under charter to the federal government for the first part of a two-phase study of salmon.

Object of much admiring attention while it was here, the 81-foot seiner is owned by Randy Thompson of Gabriola Island, and is fresh from an overhaul at Withers Shipyard on Gabriola.

Key West II and the Challenger, owned by the fishermen's co-operative at Prince Rupert, will join other vessels chartered by the United States and Japanese governments for a four-month survey of fishing waters from San Francisco to the Aleutian Islands.

BIOLOGISTS ABOARD

On her present cruise, with a crew of five and two biologists aboard, she will be at sea 16 days in waters between Cape Flattery and Kodiak Island in the Aleutians. She will fish with gillnets, and all fish caught between two and 50 pounds will be kept in Key West's huge deep freeze. Later biologists will take blood and scale samples to determine streams and rivers from which the fish came.

Her second trip will take her away from July 1 to Sept. 10.

with four biologists and a crew of eight.

Plans call for her to cruise in the vicinity of Dixon Entrance, at the northern end of the Queen Charlotte Islands, when the seine will be used to catch smaller fish. They will be tagged and released to determine where fingerlings go after leaving fresh water and in the four years they are away before spawning.

11 aft, and her 300-horsepower Enterprise diesel drives her at 10 knots. Capt. Thompson has never operated at full throttle, but said her former owners won some fishing boat races with her in California.

Her fuel tanks hold 6,300 gallons, or enough for three weeks of steady travel, and her deep-freeze will hold 150 tons of fish.

Her galley is equipped with an oil stove, domestic deep-freeze, refrigerator, large sink, hot and cold running water, and cabinets that would delight a housewife. Eight men can eat comfortably at one time. There are 10 bunks on the main deck and two in the captain's quarters.

Special equipment carried includes a fathometer for sounding depths, Loran direction finder, automatic pilot, power blocks for handling nets, and a Bendix depth recorder.

Retain CBC Powers Nanaimo Group Asks

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of 16 citizens from Nanaimo said Tuesday the CBC's powers should not be reduced except by decision of the electorate.

The discussion group presented a brief to the Royal Commission on Broadcasting, which has heard representations from private broadcasters for less CBC control.

"If the CBC is ever made an intelligent issue in a national election and the people clearly vote against it, only then should the reduction of CBC powers be considered," the Nanaimo group said.

It added the CBC system of co-existence of public and private service has worked well in radio and there was every reason to expect it would function as well in television.

"Because broadcasting fulfills the functions of a public service, there must be public control of radio and TV," the brief said.

"The principle of free and open competition by private enterprise is not valid in this sphere," it added.

LADYSMITH TEACHERS WIN 4.5% BOOST

LADYSMITH (CP)—A 4.5 per cent wage increase has been won by teachers in their negotiations with the board of trustees of School District 67, it was announced Tuesday.

A joint release said the new scale will mean an increase of $9.20 in the teachers' salary account for 1956 and will be retroactive to last April 1.

The new schedule ranges from a minimum of $2,240 for class C elementary certificates, to a high of $5,620 for holders of class A high school certificates.

The RCN plans to establish three mooring buoys in Juan de Fuca Strait about May 23, to navigational direction exercises. The buoys will be placed near Shearwater Point, and will remain in position for about a month.

They are conical buoys, red and yellow, two of them showing a flashing red light at night, one of them a flashing white light.

Courtenay Boy Drowns in River

COURTENAY (CP)—Eight-year-old Robert Hilton was drowned Tuesday in the Courtenay River when he lost his balance while fishing off a log here.

Police began dragging operations to recover the body. The boy's parents were in Vancouver at the time and he was being cared for by his grandmother.

Other children playing in the area, at the foot of 11th street, saw the lad fall and ran for help. An inhalator crew arrived, but the boy was not found.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hilton, he was in second grade at Courtenay Elementary School.

Some key industrials had small gains, but Steelco, trading ex-rights, dropped $5.24 to $65, accounting largely for a 2.66 decline in the industrial index.

General Motors slipped $2.25 to its low of the year, $40.25. International Petroleum lost $1.75. Canadian Canners gained a point in brick dealings.

Consolidated Smelters and Hudson Bay posted small fractional gains among the senior base metals. Falconbridge lost $1. Pacific Petroleum moved up 1/2 in western oils.

New Gas Pipeline To Serve 'The Hat'

New British Dominion Oil Co. Announces $1,800,000 Project

CALGARY (CP)—Work is to start on a new gas pipeline to Medicine Hat on June 22, it was announced here by Tom Brooke, president of New British Dominion Oil Company.

The 46-mile pipeline costing $1,800,000 will supply the city of Medicine Hat with gas from Etzikom Field by Aug. 15.

It will also provide gas for the new $22,000,000 fertilizer plant of Northwest Nitro Chemicals due to start production Oct. 1.

Mr. Brooke said the pipeline gathering system will be started June 22 and the main transmission July 1. It will be built by South Alberta Pipeline Ltd. but operated by New British Dominion and Midcon Oil and Gas.

The plant will be operated by Commercial Solvents on a 10-year management contract, this company owning a 43 per cent share of Northwest.

Some 600 men are at present engaged on building the chemical plant which will use sulphur presently piling up at Pincher Creek as a by-product of natural gas.

Proven reserves of the Etzikom field are 145 billion cubic feet.

Sherritt Gordon Co. Hopes To Resume Dividends Soon

TORONTO (CP)—Shareholders of Sherritt Gordon Mines Ltd. without dividends since 1946 while their company has been making a complete shift in its operations—may hope for dividend resumption by late next year, Eldon L. Brown, president, indicated at Tuesday's annual meeting.

Mr. Brown said it appears that the capital expenditures program will preclude any possibility of dividends this year, but present forecasts of earnings and capital expenditures indicate that before the end of 1957 directors should be in a position to consider the matter.

IMPROVEMENT

He announced a re-arrangement of bonded indebtedness which he said resulted in a substantial improvement in the company's financial position.

Under the new provisions, earnings subsequent to Jan. 1 this year are available, subject to maintenance of working capital, for dividend payment, capital expenditures or investment.

The company, formerly a copper-zinc-silver-gold operation at Sherritt, Man., but now a nickel-copper operation at Lynn Lake, Man., with a nickel refinery at Fort Saskatchewan, near Edmonton, had net profit of $1,903,512 compared with $1,368,884 in last year's first quarter.

BONDS OUTSTANDING—On May 2 the company had outstanding first mortgage bonds totalling $20,486,000, all payable in United States funds.

The bonds consisted of $586,000 series A bonds due 1956, bearing 4 per cent interest; $16,900,000 series B due 1958 to 1964, bearing 4 1/2 per cent interest; and $3,000,000 series C, due 1967 bearing 5 per cent interest plus 3 per cent interest which was not payable for some years.

The deferred interest was convertible into shares of the company at three-quarters of the market price of the shares at the time of conversion.

Sandwell Company To Design Mill

VANCOUVER—Sandwell & Company, consulting engineers in Vancouver and Seattle, will design and supervise the construction of a $17,000,000 kraft paper mill for the Georgia-Pacific Paper Company, at Toledo, Ore., president P. R. Sandwell announced today.

The 250 tons-per-day capacity mill will use waste wood from operating mills in the area. The Georgia-Pacific organization has head offices in Portland and forestry operations on the Pacific Coast and in the south.

The appointment of Sandwell for the Georgia-Pacific project follows closely upon the completion of a kraft mill for Westem Kraft Corporation at Albany, Ore.

Commons Approves New CPR Line

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Tuesday approved the secondary CPR line between Vancouver and Medicine Hat. The bill now goes to the Commons railway committee for a failed study.

The bill would authorize the CPR to build a 20-mile branch line in southern Alberta, from Pincher Creek in southwestern Alberta, to John Decore (L.Vegreville), sponsor of the bill already passed by the Senate, said the line would serve new processing plants of Canadian Gulf Oil Co. in connection with gas developments in Alberta's big Pincher Creek field.

Envoy From U.S. Thinks We're Vital

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP) — Livingston T. Merchant, new United States ambassador to Canada, thinks relations with Canada are "more important" than American ties with any other country in the world.

He based this belief, the 53-year-old diplomat said in an interview, on the increasing "intimacy" between the two countries and the importance of the dimensions of their economic relationships.

Another factor was the relationship the two countries had in the many international organizations which played an important role in the world today, such as the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

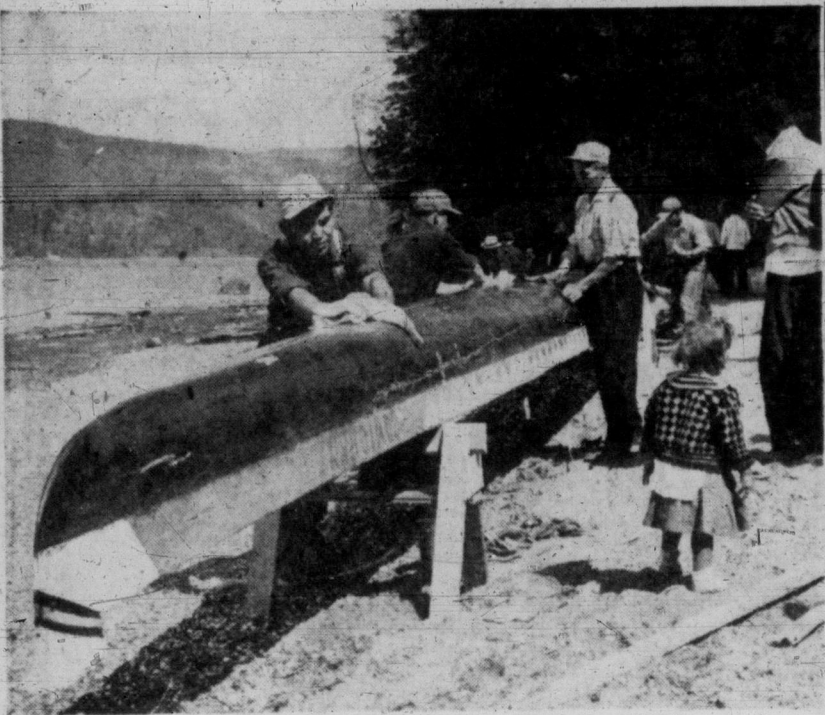

Merchant, a key officer in the state department for the last two years as assistant secretary of state for European affairs, leaves Wednesday for Ottawa to succeed R. Douglas Stuart, retiring after three years in the Ottawa post.

He and Mrs. Merchant plan a leisurely motor trip, and expect to reach Ottawa next Monday.

AVOIDS CONTROVERSY
Merchant ducked questions relating to current Canadian unrest over the extent of American economic control in Canadian industry, saying he felt he should get his feet on the ground in Ottawa before commenting on such far-reaching questions.

He did feel that there was an increasing complexity in the relationships between the two countries. This was inevitable as trade expanded, the volume of productive facilities developed and there was an increase in contacts between Canadians and Americans.

Merchant said he hopes to travel extensively in Canada. If possible, he plans to be in Calgary June 7 to present a U.S. presidential citation to the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry for heroism in Korea in 1951.

Dutch-Born Couple Lavish Love Of Houseful of Helpless Tots

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PLAINFIELD, Ont. (CP)—Leonard and Lenora Velleman have a houseful of helpless children and they love it.

Mr. and Mrs. Velleman, who emigrated from Holland 32 years ago, care for 29 mentally-defective infants. They operate the Babies' Convalescent Home, established four years ago in a 14-room brick house at nearby Thrasher's Corners, seven miles north of Belleville.

Neither Leonard Velleman, 65, nor Lenora, 60, draws any salary; instead they have invested almost all their savings and earnings in the home. It is a private venture, without aid from any government department or agency.

Their charges are babies, from a few weeks to six years old, all suffering some incurable mental handicap.

LOVING CARE

Says Mr. Velleman, a short, cheerful, bustling white-haired man from Amsterdam:

"We give them love to keep the spark of life burning. We have one little fellow who climbs out of his crib and dives under another to get a toy. There must be some spark there or why should he go after that toy? We must keep them alive."

Mrs. Velleman, a strong but kindly, dark-haired figure, supervises a staff of eight aides and a cook. She says:

"If a girl—one of the aides—has any distaste for these children she has no place with us. We accept the home at any time. Said Mr. Velleman:

"It is not the children we pity; it is the parents. This thing can come into any home; of any color or race, rich or poor."

"The children cannot remain in their homes. It is not fair to the parents; the children themselves or other children in the family. They must have special care."

Ontario institutions for mental defectives at Orillia and Smith's Falls accept only children of six years or older. At present about 2,000 children are reported on the waiting lists for these institutions and admissions average about 300 a year.

The Velleman home has been running at a deficit for several years. To alleviate the situation a non-profit organization, the Hastings Mental Health Association, Inc., was recently set up under provincial charter.

It is planned that the association will eventually take over operation of the home and Mr. and Mrs. Velleman will be retained on salary as administrators. It is hoped the homes may be established throughout the province.

Said Kenneth G. M. Ross, initial director of the association: "Nothing is easier to ignore than suffering we do not see. The suffering involved is not with the child; it is in the child's family."

He said the Velleman home is not a business.

"An institution like this would never be founded by businessmen. It is the project of a visionary."

The Vellemans ask $100 a month fees for care of the children. When, however, investigation shows parents unable to afford that sum, children are often admitted for $65 or $75 and the Vellemans make up the difference from their own resources. The Ontario government estimates the cost of keeping one such child a month at $130.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

By DON INGHAM

Rules to Observe
Re-entering Canada

Yachtsmen who plan a cruise to United States waters should consider the regulations governing their reentry into Canada, and thus avoid an unhappy ending for a pleasant trip.

Customs officers here point out that very little deliberate smuggling is done today, but that considerable ill-feeling develops because Canadians do not understand the rules regarding bringing foreign goods into the country.

For instance, incoming yachtsmen must report to customs, preferably in the daytime. If the return is made at night, an officer can be found on duty at the CPR wharf up to 10.30 p.m. Later than that, one should call at the customs office.

MUST STAY ABOARD

"Whatever happens, the party must not leave the boat until visited by a customs officer," a veteran member of the service said here.

Regulations permit each adult in the party to bring goods worth $100 into the country if he has been away 48 hours, and if he has not made a declaration in the previous four months.

"For instance, a person can go back and forth every day, and still bring in his 100 worth—as long as no declaration has been made in the four-month period," the officer said. "Also, he can bring goods in every day if he declares them and pays duty."

GOODS LIMITED

Included in the $100 duty-free goods are one carton of cigarettes, one quart of liquor, and two pounds of tobacco for each adult.

Officers advise honesty as being cheaper in the long run. "Don't try to conceal anything," a spokesman for the service said. "A veteran customs man can almost always spot someone that is trying to smuggle goods into the country. He is subject to arrest, of course, and the boat can be seized."

"Most of our trouble is caused by sheer ignorance," he said.

COMMON ERROR

A common mistake is that people feel that they can import $100 worth of goods duty-free in any four-month period, and in more than one declaration.

"Often we have people tell us that since they declared goods worth only $5 two months ago, they should be able to bring in $95 worth to make up the balance."

"It doesn't work that way. Regulations permit just one declaration of duty-free goods every four months, and at that time $100 worth can be brought in free of duty," the officer said.

Customs offices are located on Vancouver Island at Victoria, Sidney, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Courtenay, Campbell River, Bamfield, Port Alberni and Quatsino.

Immigration Official Scores
Calgary Citizenship Ceremony

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer
CALGARY (CP)—Canada's usual citizenship ceremony, unchanged in atmosphere in 20 years, is still "the most colorful thing" Miss Louisa Mayova has ever seen.

The multilingual port worker who welcomes immigrants at Quebec and Montreal was here for the annual meeting of the Alberta conference of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church.

Miss Mayova went through the same ceremony in Hamilton in 1935 as an immigrant from Czechoslovakia. It was to be a shining day for her but still lack lustre and colorless. It seemed just another day for the officials who granted her citizenship.

In Montreal where she lives to day, she says, new Canadians receiving citizenship are crowded into a room and one by one go before a judge.

Miss Mayova said the judge asks them a few questions—where they were born and have they any documents.

"It is the most colorful thing I have ever seen. It is dry and unattractive—anything but impressive," she said.

"To new Canadians, becoming a citizen is a wonderful thing . . . they have also certain responsibilities."

A nurse by profession, Miss Mayova speaks seven languages and reads and writes fluently in five.

She meets ships on behalf of the WMS, welcoming immigrants of all religions and nationalities.

For those who need it, she acts as interpreter, helping them through the red tape of baggage checking, customs, money exchange and transportation.

"Most of the immigrants are of high quality—purposeful and anxious to become real Canadians as soon as possible," she says.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Officers of the Postal Workers' Brotherhood of Canada have drawn up plans for the formation of a single postal union with a membership of about 20,000.

A statement released Tuesday following a special two-day meeting said plans for the new organization will be submitted to the national executives of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers' Association, Canadian Postal Employees and Canadian Railway Mail Clerks' Federation.

It rained fish
On Main Street

FORBES, Australia (CP)—Fish weighing up to half a pound fell from the sky on to the main street of this central New South Wales town.

The fish were dropped by hundreds of pelicans. The birds had raided Lake Forbes nearby and apparently overstocked their large bills with fish, mainly perch.

In flight they lost some of their catch. Many children raced up and down Sherriff street collecting the fish, and took them home.

INDEPENDENCE TALKS FAIL

Singapore Braces
For New Outbreak

SINGAPORE (CP)—British rulers of this crown colony braced themselves today for an outbreak of violence feared developing in the wake of the collapse of independence talks in London Tuesday.

Some British residents predict bloodshed and rioting may break out on a scale comparable to the Cyprus violence.

Chief minister David Marshall said in London that he is coming home to resign—a move which could bring the leftist People's Action party into power.

"This is a great victory for communism," Marshall asserted in a voice trembling with anger.

LASTED THREE WEEKS

The talks, started three weeks ago, broke off Tuesday over British insistence on retaining final control of internal defence on this island base. Marshall's delegation would agree only to a supreme security council on which Britain would be represented but would not dominate. Marshall described the British offer to grant limited self-government as "a Christmas pudding with arsenic sauce."

"We were willing to make concessions all the way," he added, "but we were not prepared to subject ourselves completely."

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd said Britain "would always be ready to try again."

Warehouse Burns,
$450,000 Damage
To Stored Fruit

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP)—The large Pyramids Orchards warehouse, a mile west of Yakima, was destroyed by fire late Tuesday along with an estimated 60,000 boxes of apples, 40,000 boxes of pears and several thousand empty containers. An early, unofficial estimate set the damage at $450,000.

"Mystery" radiosondes turn up all over.

'Mystery Object' Proves Weather Device for RCAF

"Mystery object" turned in recently to RCAF 5 Air Division Headquarters, Vancouver, by RCMP Pilot Officer Pat Montgomery, of 3215 W. 24th avenue, Vancouver, and regular RCAF Corporal Carl Lundquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lundquist of Duncan, B.C.

The object is a radiosonde weather recording device, which is taken up to 30,000 feet by balloon and transmits weather data to the ground by radio. The radiosonde turns up in all parts of B.C., and many of them are returned to the RCAF by civilians and RCMP. They are easily recognized by their white plastic case, approximately eight inches square, with "Radiosonde" printed on the outside, and are completely harmless.

RAIL LINES WILL MERGE: TO BUY PGE?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Great Northern Railway is considering a merger with the Northern Pacific to form a system that would even outdo the Canadian-Pacific as the biggest privately-owned rail system in the world, GNR president John M. Budd said Tuesday.

Mr. Budd said that if the merger went through the company might consider a bid on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, now owned by the province of British Columbia.

"But so far this has been mentioned only in a joking way," he said.

Canada's Influence On World Affairs Praised by Briton

HALIFAX (CP)—The Earl of Home, British secretary for Commonwealth affairs, Tuesday, praised Canada's increasing influence on world affairs and said "initiative and foresight" saved Britain from becoming a second-rate power after the Second World War.

He told guests at a Nova Scotia government dinner that acceptance of responsibilities for the world's solidarity prevented other nations from being apprehensive of Canada's growing power and influence.

Union's Books Seized After Legal Action

Mainland Laborers' Officers Ousted

VANCOUVER (CP)—Books belonging to Local 168 of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union (AFL-CLC), were seized Tuesday by the dissident local's newly-appointed trustee.

Stacey Warner of North Vancouver, appointed Monday as trustee by international headquarters in Washington, said Tuesday night in a press release the books were seized after "legal measures" were taken, and the local's bank account was frozen.

Deposed financial secretary Bill Hunchuk announced, meanwhile, that a general membership meeting will be held here Thursday. Mr. Warner called the meeting "unconstitutional" and said the ousted local leaders threaten "the whole status of the union movement in the building and construction trades through their irresponsibility."

Mr. Warner, who was refused the local's books when he appeared at headquarters Monday to take over, said Mr. Hunchuk has told shop stewards in Squamish, B.C., to call the men off jobs in the area by this morning and added it was understood "the men would not return to work until the following Tuesday."

Some 50 men walked off a pipeline-laying project at Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., last week in protest over wages they said were below union scale in the rest of the province.

Attempts to negotiate a new contract failed. International headquarters deposed the local's executive Monday.

Mr. Warner termed "utter nonsense" charges that an American union was interfering in a Canadian union's affairs. He said "senior Canadian officers of the union" requested the action.

UBC Chief to Speak At U.S. University

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. N. A. MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, will give the principal address at the 106th annual commencement of the University of Rochester (N.Y.), June 10.

HOTEL OWNERS WANT PRICE OF BEER UPPED

PENTICTON—Increased costs that go into putting a glass of beer on a public-house table must be met, directors of the British Columbia Hotels Association have decided.

The directors decided at their spring board meeting to poll the 410 member hotels seeking a sanction to increase beer prices before the matter is taken up with the Liquor Control Board.

Executive secretary E. Ely of Vancouver, said the hotelmen want to retain the 10-cent glass of beer, which means the present 7½-ounce glass would have to be scrapped in favor of a smaller glass. A 16-ounce glass, to sell for 25 cents, is also being considered.

Vancouver Symphony Lauds CBC's Help

(BUP and CP Dispatches) VANCOUVER—Presenting a brief for the Vancouver Symphony Society before the Fowler royal commission here, manager Robert Phillips praised the efforts of the CBC in fostering an appreciation of good music in British Columbia.

He said the CBC paid the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra $15,000 for broadcast rights to 12 concerts each season, and that CBC fees were an important factor in keeping musicians of high calibre in British Columbia.

"It is the opinion of all seriously-minded people that if the CBC failed to maintain and increase its present quality and quantity of musical performance, and ceased to give its financial support to musicians and musical organizations which employ them, the whole impetus of cultural growth would come to a standstill," he said.

M. P. Finnerty, president of the B.C. broadcasters and owner of radio station CKOK at Penticton, told the commission he is alarmed at the way broadcasting regulation is carried out.

There was "almost fear" of the CBC on the part of the private broadcasters, and this was detrimental to the national interest and harmful to both types of broadcasters.

Better broadcasting would develop if private stations could make their own arrangements voluntarily without the knowledge that they were under regulation by an organization regarded as a competitor.

"There is a definite, possibly unwarranted—feeling by the private broadcasters that the mere holding of regulatory powers by the CBC reduces its over-all efficiency," Mr. Finnerty said.

On the question of setting up private station networks, the broadcasters' president said these might start with regional hookups, with national networks to come along later.

A private British Columbia radio operator told the commission that he had not made application for a regional network only because he felt the CBC was not prepared to authorize it.

F. H. Elphicke, manager of Vancouver radio station CKWX, said he thought CBC control of the broadcasting regulations was unfair in principle and unfair to the public. He was amplifying part of his brief presented Monday, which suggested the formation of a separate regulatory body.

The 50,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor, represented by Secretary George Home, argued the CBC should retain control of radio and TV and that regulations governing broadcasting stations should be strictly enforced.

The labor organization opposed private broadcasters' recommendation that competitive stations should be licensed on all available television channels.

Mr. Home said that in this part of the country it could result in private stations duplicating the type of programs available from just below the U.S. border.

Accused Man Studies Law, Wins Freedom

Legal Battle Lasted 6 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of British Columbia's longest legal battles was won Tuesday by Peter Oscar Jorgenson, 28, who started studying law six years ago to defend himself on a series of criminal charges.

The end came with dismissal of a perjury charge in police court.

Jorgenson started studying law in 1950 when he faced a list of charges, including arson, smuggling, dealing in a forgery and forgery, and attempting to defraud.

The perjury charge, arising out of an old affidavit, was dismissed for lack of prosecution. Prosecutor Stewart McMorran asked for another remand in the case and explained that delay in prosecution was due to the death of a major witness.

He said efforts had been made to get information from other sources and other witnesses, and this had been done except for one who was out of town and would be for a week or two.

The magistrate said he would allow no further remands and dismissed the case.

"I have served a six-year sentence," Jorgenson said later. The youthful legal battler walked from the courtroom carrying a well-stuffed, well-worn briefcase.

Red-Held Tibet Swept by Revolt

"Fighting is continuing over wide areas," he said. Many Chinese had been killed and some Buddhist monasteries have been bombed by Chinese planes.

Sun-Powered Radio Now a Fact

By PHIL LEE

Tom Swift, Dick Tracy and those inventive geniuses of science-fiction had better look over their respective shoulders. For what was once their fancy is fast becoming fact. Science has caught up with the dreamers.

Today, for instance, a Canadian corporation has announced that it is marketing a new portable radio—the first in the world—that works without tubes and gets its power from the sun's rays. Six months ago this scientific marvel was only a factory prototype, a prophecy of things to come.

The new "sun" radio has transistors instead of tubes, which virtually last a lifetime since they can't break or burn out. They're so tiny that there is room for a five-inch speaker where only a three-inch could be used before in the same case with a regular portable radio.

SPARE POWER

Power comes from batteries or a "Sun Power Pak" about the size of a postcard. The Sun Pak plugs into the back of the radio, converts the sun's rays into electric power through 32 silicone solar cells. If the sun's not out, power can be obtained from the Sun Pak under a light-bulb or infra-red lamp.

But, just to make sure, the radio also carries six flashlight batteries that will give 700 hours of use since transistors have only one-tenth of the power drain of ordinary tubes and lower operating voltage. As the manufacturers (Canadian Admiral Corporation)

Building Boom In New Brunswick; Worker Shortage

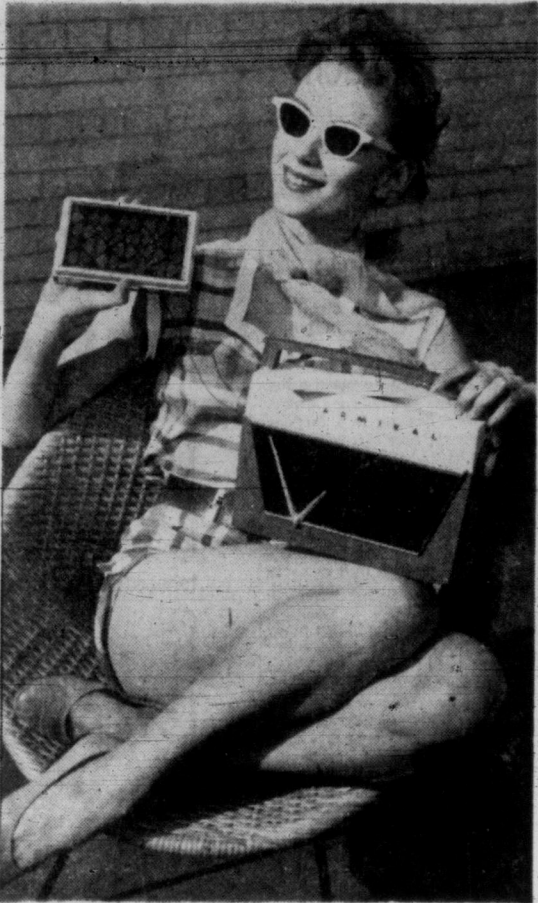

FREDERICTON (CP)—A building boom here this year may find the city faced with a shortage of manpower.

The national employment office said that expected construction projects may require more workers than the area can provide. H. B. Colwell, city building inspector, says it is still too early to place a cash value on 1956 construction but "several million dollars will be spent on commercial expansion."

Frank Gibson, manager of the national employment office, said work on the new army camp at nearby Gagetown will require more than the 2,025 persons listed as unemployed in the county.

Workers may have to be brought from other provinces and the influx may have some effect on wages.

Already underway here are a $300,000 University of New Brunswick chemistry building; a $500,000 Bank of Nova Scotia branch and a $200,000 addition to a chain store.

A PERFECT COMPANION when sun bathing is the world's first sun-powered portable radio now being produced by a Canadian firm.

point out, one important aspect of this revolutionary radio is its usefulness in civil defence as a communication instrument which will continue to operate in spite of power failures and unavailability of new batteries. Now, of course, one can't help but think of the day when

"power paks" will be built into one's house, made to run on television sets, electric ranges, furnaces, and all other electrical gadgets. Tomorrow, mayhap, is a day without trolley lines, telephone lines or power lines of any kind. Weird to think of, what?

Italians Try Again To Find Lost Army

Seek Facts About 65,000 Soldiers Missing Since Don Battle in Russia

ROME (Reuters) — The Italian government is making a new effort to solve one of the major riddles of the Second World War—the disappearance of 65,000 men in Russia after the Battle of the Don early in 1943.

The Italian Army in Russia, known as Armir, numbered 228,960 men on the eve of the battle. When the smoke cleared away a week later, the Italians counted their losses—10,800 men had been killed and 80,000 were missing.

Some days later, Moscow radio claimed that 100,000 Italians were captured in the battle. Making allowances for a propaganda margin in the Russian claim, the Italians assumed their 80,000 missing had fallen into Russian hands.

NAMES REQUESTED

At the end of the war, 15,000 Italian prisoners of war were returned by the Russians, who declared there were no more Italians in Soviet prisoner-of-war camps. The question immediately asked by thousands of families in Italy was: What happened to the other 65,000?

The Russians never have volunteered any information. Their reply to Italian requests for a statement has always been: "Give us a list of their names and we will make inquiries."

Now, 13 years after the battle, the Italians are painstakingly drawing up the list. In the last two months, two lists, totalling 700 names, have been handed to the Russian ambassador in Rome, Alexander Bogomolov. More will follow.

They are meticulous documents, comprising photostatic copies of testimony of returned Italian and

Common Language Sought for Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—Peiping radio has started broadcasts designed to train teachers in the Mandarin dialect the Communists hope all Chinese on the mainland will some day speak. SMASHES ROADBLOCK, DODGES BULLETS

RCMP Dragnet for Rapist Escaped From B.C. Jail

INVERMERE, B.C. (CP)—RCMP today pushed an expanding search north of this southern B.C. municipality for a desperate accused rapist who police said has stolen two cars and crashed through a roadblock since he broke out of Cranbrook jail Sunday.

Jack Norman Curtiss, 33, was being sought in the Radium Junction area after RCMP discovered a stolen car abandoned at Dry Gulch, seven miles north of here. He is thought to be hiding out in nearby hills.

Curtiss, who was to have appeared in court Monday on a charge of rape, broke out of the Cranbrook jail when a civilian guard came to pick up his breakfast dishes. He slammed the cell door on the surprised guard and bolted from the building.

Curtiss was first reported to have stolen a car at Wardner, 10 miles east of Cranbrook, 80 miles south of here. He drove 50 miles north from Wardner to Canal Flats before abandoning the first car and stealing a second owned by Harry Erskine, police said.

Fifteen miles north of Canal Flats he roared through an RCMP roadblock in the stolen car as police fired several shots.

Mainguy Again Heads Cerebral Palsy Group

A marked increase in cases handled at Jubilee Hospital cerebral palsy clinic last year was noted in the annual report of Lower Vancouver Island Cerebral Palsy Association given by president James W. Mainguy, re-elected Monday for another term.

Gordon Robinson was elected vice-president and medical director is Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, of Jubilee Hospital.

In two years the number of children receiving treatment at the clinic has risen from 14 to 42. The medical staff conducts a screening clinic once a week to consider admission of new cases and review cases of admitted patients.

In the past year 2,408 physiotherapy treatments were given compared with 1,881 in the previous year. Home treatments rose from 213 to 429, and occupational therapy treatments jumped from 1,130 to 2,149. Speech therapy and hydrotherapy treatments were up also.

A full five rooms are now in use at the clinic, more than last year, and Mr. Mainguy expects further expansion in the current year. The school has a steadily increasing load to carry, and to supplement school board services another part-time teacher has been added to the staff. Others on the staff are the secretary-manager, full-time and part-time physiotherapists, full-time occupational therapist, a part-time speech therapist and part-time cleaner.

Mr. Mainguy praised volunteer work done by the women's auxiliary, Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and HMC Dockyard firemen. The latter drive palsy buses in off-duty time. Ways and means committee members Wes Fulton and R. D. Bennett reported on success of concessions at Victoria Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition and at Little League Ball Park, in charge of E. Pistell.

A dance is planned for June 8 in the Tango Room, Oak Bay Avenue under convener Mrs. J. Henderson and Mrs. E. McFadden. Tickets are available at the clinic.

Annual meeting of the provincial association in Vancouver was reported.

Warden V. S. J. Richmond said Tuesday he is awaiting posting back to Collins Bay, Ont., near Kingston, where he served as warden before taking charge of the institution here in March.

Plane Crash Lands Seattle Men Safe

SEATTLE (AP)—Two executives of a Seattle fishing company who escaped death when their plane crashed on Duke Island near Ketchikan Monday were flown to the Alaska city Tuesday.

Chris Dahl, operator of the Kaylor-Dahl Fish Co., and John

A. Lauc, sales manager, were flown to Ketchikan in a private plane after they radioed for help.

It was not known what caused the plane to crash on the island, 30 miles south of Ketchikan. Dahl and Lauc were flying from Seattle to Petersburg when the plane went down.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Our Very Own Guide to Victoria (For Tourists, But Not Necessarily)

Victoria is situated on an island separated from everywhere by ferry and air services operating on standard or daylight time, depending on which your watch isn't set at. This makes it difficult to get to Victoria, and is just as well.

Some people reach Victoria by swimming, but this is not generally recommended unless you are Bert Thomas. If you DO happen to have the kind of watch which enables you to catch a ferry or a plane (remember you are allowed to catch only one ferry or plane per day, must throw back all those under the limit, and this in open season only) you will be amazed at the sights which greet your eyes when you arrive in Victoria.

Victoria is different to most cities. Its brick buildings, for the most part, are built of bricks. Its streets are paved, often reaching in unbroken, smooth stretches for as much as six yards between potholes.

A fact the visitor will notice immediately — and will cause him to unlimber his camera — is this: nearly all the natives of Victoria have only one head!

Victoria, of course, is widely regarded as a "Little bit of Old England." This is especially evident in the commercial eating places (known, in the quaint, old English vernacular as cafes, restaurants, coffee shops and cafeterias).

In these typically English eateries, one can enjoy the Strathcona's barbecued spareribs; the Jolly Friar's chile con carne; the House of Chan's chow mein; the Chez Marcel's baked snails; the Princess Mary's clam chowder; Mac's hamburger de luxe.

But if one should tire of the predominantly English menu offered one, one can always take time out to admire Victoria's unique scenery. To name only one outstanding attraction, feast your eyes on the Olympic Mountains, displayed through the kind permission of the United States of America, Union 48, Dwight D. Eisenhower, president.

Little known facts about Victoria: There is a fountain at the Fountain Circle... lightning has never known to strike at Thunderbird Park... the lawn of the Legislative Buildings is largely composed of grass... Beacon Hill was named because there used to be a beacon there... the swans in Goodacre Lake have long necks... Goodacre isn't a very large lake... the new Island Highway is so-called to differentiate it from the old Island Highway... Little Saanich Mountain certainly isn't very large... there is a naval base at Esquimalt, but very few oranges are grown there... Victoria is about as far West in Canada as you can go without falling into the ocean, which many people do... Victoria's principle import is retired farmers from the Prairies... Smith street was named after a man named Smith...

We do hope you will enjoy your stay with us, and brought lots of traveller's checks (in Victoria, they are spent "cheques," but the end result is much the same).

NEW PRESIDENT of Victoria chapter of the Radio Electronic Technicians Association is S. B. Spencer, the association announced Wednesday. Mr. Spencer will take over from Vince Milen, now past president. Other RETA officers are: W. F. Wilson, vice-president; W. M. Walker, secretary; N. Oldfield, treasurer; and G. Haines, recording secretary.

CGE Company Soon to Need Plant in B.C.

The day is not far distant when the Canadian General Electric Company will need a manufacturing plant on the Pacific Coast, says James H. Goss, president and chief executive officer of the company, who arrived in Victoria from his Toronto headquarters today.

"It is impossible to put a date on this development," the 48-year-old executive told The Times. "But it is a logical sequel to our expanding business and we have been studying it on a continuing basis for some time."

WITH CHAIRMAN
Mr. Goss is accompanied on a tour of the company's western offices by Harold M. Turner, chairman of the board, and J. H. Smith, vice-president and general manager of the apparatus department.

They met local businessmen at a private luncheon at the Empress Hotel today given by J. George Duck, branch sales manager in charge of the Victoria office. Guests included G. Fitzpatrick Dunn, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Ald. Austin Curtis, vice-president, and Hector L. Crombie, secretary manager.

VAST INCREASE
Mr. Goss said the company's personnel has grown from 4,600 in 1939 to a present strength of 16,000. Its manufacturing output last year was valued at $218,000,000.

"We plan to double our output during the next 10 years and to double it again between 1966 and 1976. That is our target and present indications are we shall be able to meet it."

Mr. Goss joined the parent General Electric Co. at Schenectady in 1931 as a student engineer. After holding various executive appointments in the United States, he was appointed president of the Canadian company in 1955.

Mr. Turner, also a native of the United States, has been with Canadian General Electric since 1926, and was elected chairman of the board last year. He is now a Canadian citizen.

He sees great industrial potentialities in the west and is impressed by the "stability" of business conditions in Victoria.

LACK ENGINEERS
"There is a continuing shortage of skilled engineering personnel needed to keep abreast of our industrial expansion," Mr. Turner said.

"At the moment we are interested in levelling the manufacturing load to eliminate, as far as possible, the peak periods of production and consequent slack periods."

Both Mr. Turner and Mr. Goss agreed that the development of automation offers no threat to employment. They believe the demand for skilled personnel will continue indefinitely.

Former Forests Minister Not To Be Called

Sloan Not Hearing
Sommers, Kenney

Former Social Credit Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers will not be called before the Sloan Royal Commission on Forestry.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan announced today he has decided to turn down a request by counsel appearing before the commission that Mr. Sommers be "invited" to appear.

Former Liberal lands and forests minister E. Kenney was included in the request. Gordon Gibson, former Liberal M.L.A. for Lillooet, initiated the "call Sommers" action. He said Mr. Sommers, who resigned with a blast at what he termed a "conspiracy" in the logging industry, should be called on to substantiate his charges.

Mr. Gibson later withdrew his motion "if it will help in having him brought here."

But Ron Howard, counsel for Western Forest Management Association and Lawrence Eckhardt, B.C. Truck Loggers, asked the commissioner to "invite" both Mr. Sommers and Mr. Kenney.

QUOTES PRECEDENTS
Chief Justice Sloan, in issuing his ruling, said he was acting on long-standing precedents to the effect that a minister of the Crown has to answer only to the Legislative Assembly, and ultimately the electorate, for his decisions while in office.

He said a court, or a tribunal such as his royal commission, had no right to call on a minister, or a former minister, and ask him to "explain or justify" his policies.

On a second portion of the request by Mr. Howard and Mr. Eckhardt, that both former ministers be called to answer questions dealing only with administration — as separate from policy — the chief justice said every member of the B.C. Forest Service had been made available to answer questions dealing with administration.

LAWSUITS PENDING
He said he would reconsider his ruling only if counsel could frame questions dealing with administration which could not be proven by cross-examination of forest service officials.

Mr. Sommers resigned his portfolio in Premier Bennett's cabinet after denying he had accepted bribes in his office as forests minister.

He has filed suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy, who made the initial charges against the minister.

Pistol-Waving Incident Brings Plea of Guilty

Plea of guilty to a charge of being in possession of a firearm without a permit was entered in city police court today for Stuart D. Robertson, 28, Victoria.

Robertson was arrested Saturday afternoon after a pistol-waving incident in Chinatown.

He will again appear in court Thursday for sentence on the charge.

Police testified today that Robertson was arrested at Johnson and Douglas streets after he had been waving a pistol in the 300 block Fisgard.

A revolver was found under the seat of the truck he had been driving, and a full clip of ammunition was also found by police, court heard.

Police said the man had been drinking.

Near Drought Since April 1; No Relief in Sight

Continued hot, dry weather on Lower Vancouver Island, with temperatures edging into the 70's and clear, sunny skies, is causing concern to farmers who fear damage to hay and cereal crops.

In a near-drought period, this area has received only one-quarter inch of rain since April 1. This is the time of year when field crops need a heavy supply of water, and, unless rain falls within the next two weeks, growers forecast a reduction in the hay crop and a shortage of feed for farm animals.

The official forecast calls for a continuation of warm weather, with temperatures reaching at least 70, and likely more, today and Thursday.

NO SIGN OF CHANGE
A high-pressure ridge continues to produce sunny skies, and the meteorological office sees no sign of rain in the near future. Winds will remain northerly and light, up to a maximum of 15 miles per hour.

Some farmers complain that lack of rain has stopped field growth completely, especially on the high levels.

Fruit and vegetable growers have on the whole been able to combat the dry spell through the use of modern sprinkler systems which were introduced to the island several years ago.

Artificial water reserves are providing the strawberry and loganberry crops with sufficient moisture.

Horticulturists said the artificial water reserves on island farms have saved fruit growers from serious damage.

"A few years ago, a dry spell like this would have been a serious concern to berry growers, they said.

Some of the dairy farms with large areas for grazing and for cereal crops were not as fortunate, they said, because it was impossible to get water to the land without installing elaborate irrigation systems.

Last Call for Shots Against Polio Issued

Last call for anti-polio injections for children who will start school this fall was issued by Victoria-Esquamalt health authorities today.

Parents of all youngsters who were registered for Salk injections this spring should present them at the city health clinic on Thursday between 9 and 11 a.m.

A similar clinic was held on Monday but many of the children whose names were registered did not appear.

Health authorities warn supplies are dwindling and it is not yet known when more Salk vaccine will be available.

Injections were being given today at S. J. Willis High School. All youngsters up to Grade 9 will have received one injection by May 25.

City Man Awaits Theft Sentence

Sentence will be imposed in Saanich police court next Wednesday on William Russell Fowler, Victoria, who pleaded guilty today to a charge of stealing money and cheques of a sum over $50.

Fowler was arrested at about 1 a.m. today, police said. Court was told Fowler was given $180 in cash and $279 in cheques to bank for his employer, Ken Salmon. He failed to bank the cash and cheques.

Police said $100 of the amount was missing when the accused was searched after arrest.

MOUNT TOLMIE PROJECT OKAY LIKELY TODAY

A road widening and parking area project to accommodate up to 30 cars on top of Mount Tolmie was expected to be approved later today at an annual meeting of Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks committee.

Cost was set at about $1,000. The committee, comprised of city and Saanich council members toured district recreational facilities this morning.

SCOUTS' MORTGAGE PAID

Seven years of struggle ended Tuesday night when the mortgage on the Elks' Own Troop Boy Scouts Hall on Kings Road was turned over to the group of citizens who had guaranteed its discharge. In front of the hall are two of the group, T. H. Armstrong and J. S. Quissey. Others included S. Fevang, F. Taylor, C. C. Howard, R. E. Jones, P. Bogeland, R. Clements, J. R. Begg and the late Jim Kinnett.

Gorge Swimming Ban Sure To Be Lifted

An 18-year ban on swimming in Gorge waters will be lifted by official proclamation either Thursday or Friday.

Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy said today the action now only awaits last-minute talks with Saanich health officer, Dr. A. N. Beattie.

The announcement follows preparation of a final report on Gorge purity by city sanitary inspector Elwood Groppe following tests Tuesday.

Mr. Groppe said this morning his report was to be submitted to Dr. Mahaffy later today. He said his final tests led him to recommend the ban be lifted.

It was imposed about 1938 when septic tank run-off raised the bacterial count of the inland waterway to a dangerous level. In recent years, new sewers have removed this hazard.

Tuesday's tests measured the flow of harbor contamination into the Gorge and dye placed in the harbor did not pass into the Gorge narrows with the tide.

AWAIT BEACHES
Health authorities stressed earlier that the official opening of the Gorge would be delayed until proper beach facilities have been constructed.

Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee acted on that matter this morning. An inspection party comprised of city and Saanich council members visited the beach below Tillam Bridge.

The committee agreed that they would recommend naming of this area "Kinnett Beach" if the service club would undertake to provide lavatory facilities.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who is also chairman of the Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, said he will ask the clubmen also to undertake project.

Leather and Metal Combine
To Form Novelty Key Chains

By PENNY SAVER

There was a time when key chains were mere key chains, but now they have changed! You can find anything from a miniature tool kit to manicure articles concealed in the cleverly designed baubles and novelty charms on the chains. A T-shaped plastic and metal charm about an inch long is a miniature hammer. Unscrew the bottom, and out come three small tools—a saw blade, screwdriver and drill. They fit into a slot found beneath the hammer head. You can actually use them, and they're perfect replicas of the larger combination tool sets that proved to be such welcomed gifts around Christmas. A gold-plated chain and key ring, with charm, costs $2.

From a tiny tartan golf bag that's bound in leather, pokes a cluster of clubs. Pull them out, and instead of handles, you'll find a nail file as the base. This one costs $1.50.

An old-fashioned lamp made of gold metal and mauve and gold leather has a hinged top. Inside is a thimble, three tiny spoons of thread, a small safety pin and a needle. If he doesn't want to sew on a button or two, even with such convenience, at least he has the needle and thread all ready for someone who's willing to do it for him. This key chain costs $1.

The outdoor type? He'll get a bit of a chuckle out of the small, leather-bound compass that hangs from another key chain. It's accurate and bound in good leather. It's $1.50.

At the same price a leather case containing a pair of small dice forms the novel charm for this key chain.

If you have a fisherman in the family, you'll be interested to know that the handy fisherman's knives have arrived back in town. A single blade is set into a cork block, so that even if he drops it in the stream or lake, it won't be lost, because it will float to the surface, and stay afloat indefinitely. These good-looking and welcome gifts cost $1.75.

If, while browsing through the column, you come across articles that interest you, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you the names of the stores where they may be found.

Speaker Describes
Hospital Therapy

Rehabilitation where possible and recreation in a happy atmosphere were described by Miss Helen Egan as the aims of the occupational therapy department of the Gorge Hospital.

Speaking after the recent business meeting of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Egan told of the beneficial results being noticed with those patients who exercise arthritic fingers, or soothe the disturbed nerves by knitting afghan squares, winding crepe paper, and similar rhythmic crafts employing the interplay of muscles which may not have been used in this way for some time. She works in close co-operation with the physiotherapist, and the hospital auxiliary helps with the transportation of the patients to and from the craft room.

At the moment the patients are busy making articles for the forthcoming bazaar. Miss Egan was thanked by Mrs. Ruby Master, program chairman.

Final plans for the annual musical at Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday evening, May 25, were discussed. This is the major club project for the year and all proceeds go to the Bay Wigly Memorial Scholarship Fund. Mrs. J. Ingram Smith is general convener.

Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, president, was in the chair.

Swedish Treats Served
At Colorful Festival Tea

Swedish women in colorful national dress poured tea at a table decorated with the blue and yellow Swedish flag surrounded by yellow tulips and flanked by blue and yellow candles, Tuesday afternoon, in the Knights of Pythias Hall.

The occasion marked the first public appearance of the Swedish Canadian Social Group, which was organized in January. It also opened a series of five folk festival teas sponsored by the Canadian Folk Society. Mrs. V. Benson and Mrs. H. W. Turnquist presided at the table and Mrs. E. Swanson, also wearing national costume, received guests. Mrs. G. Weber, Mrs. A. Cuthbert, Mrs. E. Naslund and Mrs. F. Pearson assisted in the kitchen.

Colorful Swedish costumes were worn by servitors, Mrs. E. Kelner and Mrs. E. Gansen, who passed Swedish delicacies to the guests.

SWEDISH MAZARIN CAKE
A favorite was Swedish Mazarin cake, made by Mrs. Kelner, who consented to letting her prize recipe be known, so that guests may enjoy them again in their own homes.

Pastry: ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup powdered sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup flour. Filling: ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup butter, ¾ cup blanched almonds, ground, 2 eggs and green coloring (optional).

Work butter and sugar until white and fluffy. Add egg yolk and flour and stir until smooth. Leave dough in refrigerator one hour. Filling: Work sugar and butter until smooth. Add almonds, eggs and green coloring and mix until well blended. Roll out dough, place in individual tart shells and add filling. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 minutes. Top with whipped cream.

Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah opened the tea at 2:30 p.m. Special guests were Mrs. W. C. Bennett and Mrs. W. N. Chant.

The Swedish dress worn by Mrs. Swanson showed the fine detail of her navy blue skirt with hand-woven, brightly striped front panel. Her blouse was trimmed with a handloomed border around the sleeves and neckline, and she wore a gay pocket, which hung at the left side of her skirt, and which, she explained, is used for carrying keys and other small but important items. On her head she wore a pretty lace-trimmed cap, which, in Swedish dialect, is called the "huckle," pronounced "hookle."

Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah accepts a mazarin cake from hostess, Mrs. E. Swanson, at Swedish tea featured at Folk Festival. Mrs. E. Kelner, right, who made the tasty cakes, holds another trayful of Swedish treats.

Mrs. Swanson is chairman of at Norway House to "get to the Swedish-Canadian Social together... know one another Group, which meets each month and have fun."

Esquimalt CWL
Membership Tea

Many new members and old friends were welcomed by president Mrs. A. Dickie at the annual membership tea of the Esquimalt branch of the Esquimalt Women's League.

Yellow tulips and blue iris decorated the hall for the occasion. Presiding at the head table were two members of many years' standing, Mrs. T. O'Leary and Mrs. R. White. Co-conveners of the tea were Mrs. G. Malenfant and Mrs. M. Hall, assisted by Mrs. A. Bethel. Servitors were Misses Margo Malenfant and Teresa Edgington.

The retiring president, Mrs. A. Smith, was presented with a china tea set by Mrs. Dickie and a gold scroll with names of members. Mrs. C. Macklin was in charge of the raffle; Mrs. N. Warburton, membership cards, and Mrs. J. Comerford, door receipts.

Woman Traffic Engineer Proves Successful In Man's World; Slide Rule Among Charms

WASHINGTON — Next to a super-highway system, Elizabeth Jackson is about the most exciting thing that can happen to a traffic engineer.

When one of them talks shop with her, he never forgets it. Here's why:

She's an attractive brunette. She's 24 years old and single. She's a brilliant civil engineer. And she's a traffic engineer for the Chicago Planning Commission.

"I have to contact a lot of engineers around Chicago, and it always seems that after one meeting they remember me," laughs Liz, who considers the novelty of being a woman traffic engineer a distinct advantage.

She came to town recently to attend the annual meeting of the Highway Research Board, a national co-operative organization of highway engineers and technologists.

What Liz is most proud of, however, is her election last November as a member of the Institute of Traffic Engineers. She and only one other woman belong to this national society.

"I'm just a farm girl from Wisconsin," says Liz. "But I've always loved math and was determined to be an engineer. When I went to the University of Wisconsin, they tried to talk me out of it, but I'm pretty stubborn."

Turned out she was the only girl who took civil engineering along with hundreds of men. But that didn't faze her.

"They treated me like a sister and I thought it was fun," she explains. But it was difficult for her to earn enough to put herself through school.

A scholarship covered her tuition, but she had to take on outside jobs to pay her room and board.

"At the end of my first year

Christian Literature

To Fight Propaganda

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a great need for the spread of more and more Christian literature to meet the threat of Communist propaganda in countries abroad, a Toronto missionary worker said Tuesday.

Mrs. A. J. Cherry told the 42nd annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church of Canada that the society spent $12,414 in 1955 to send Christian literature throughout the world.

But there was still a crying need for more in such areas as Japan, Korea, the West Indies, Formosa, Africa, India and Malaya, she said in reporting as the society's secretary of Christian literature.

The meeting is of delegates for the society's western division and is being attended by women from Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario.

Elizabeth Jackson, traffic engineer for the Chicago Planning Commission. Her colleagues don't forget her.

I had just two dollars left," she says with a smile. "One semester I worked 40 hours a week and carried seven courses."

Today she's the pride of Wisconsin's engineering department. Liz graduated with honors in 1954 and is a member of Tau Beta Pi, the engineer's Phi Beta Kappa.

Then she began working for the Chicago Planning Commission and just recently took over as traffic engineer. She handles all types of traffic problems in connection with the development of new land and housing projects in the city.

Liz was drawn to traffic engineering because she thought it offered the best opportunities for a gal.

AS WE LIVE

Mother's Boasting Is Injurious to Family

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Parents can do much to increase or decrease a child's popularity, depending on what they do.

(Q) "My mother's motto is 'Nothing succeeds like success.' She is always telling me this and she is always practicing it in her own life. She never, for example, hesitates to tell people about how well her children do in school; what my Dad does in his business, or what our relatives do. Often she exaggerates what she says and tries to make people think we are more important than we are."

"Dad says it hurts him in business to have her talk this way and now I am finding out just what he means. Mother is always telling her neighbors and friends how popular I am and about all the social engagements I have. My classmates are beginning to call me 'Belle,' and I know they are laughing at me behind my back. I am reasonably popular but I won't be much longer unless I can get my mother to stop talking. But, how?" — B.J.

(A) As you are not the only victim of your mother's boasting, why not have the whole family unite and try to impress upon your mother how much her boasting is handicapping all of you? Call a family conference and have all the members of your immediate family there.

Then, let each tell, in turn, how her boasting has affected them. You, for example, can stress the fact that you are now nicknamed "Belle" and that you know it is not a compliment but a derogatory nickname.

As your mother is unquestionably proud of her family and their achievements, it would be kind to suggest ways to add to the family successes which would bring better results than her boasting. In your case, for example, ask her to let you bring the boys and girls to your home for informal get-togethers and give them plenty of good food. If your mother put her efforts into entertaining family friends instead of boasting about the popularity of her family, she could increase their popularity to the point where she would not have to boast.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Be Conscious of Cancer To Avoid Being Its Victim

Some people feel that there has been so much publicity about cancer that a damaging mass hysteria has arisen. It is true that fear and chronic concentration on any small physical disability, real or imagined, is detrimental to health.

Nevertheless, thousands of lives are lost each year because men and women did not heed warning signals or were uninformed about them. This is especially true of women—cancers of the breast and uterus are their greatest hazards. These account for the largest majority of feminine cancer fatalities.

Women are fortunate in that the breasts and the uterus are easily examined. If a woman has regular semi-yearly medical examinations, is aware and observant about any unusual symptoms and reports them to her doctor immediately if they do occur, she cuts her likelihood of having fatal cancer tremendously.

Even in cancers of the breast and uterus the outlook is most hopeful if they are discovered soon enough.

A woman should have a thorough breast and uterus examination twice each year by her physician. She also should examine her own breasts after each menstrual period. It is difficult for a woman to tell whether or not her breasts are normal at first, but after a few months' experience she will be better able to discover any changes. The semi-yearly check-up by her doctor should be a matter of routine but she should immediately report any unusual symptoms to him. Just a few months can make a big difference.

You should report to your doctor immediately:

1. Any hard lump.
2. A change in breast contour.
3. Any puckering or dimpling of the skin.
4. Retraction of either or both nipples. (The nipple goes in rather than out.)
5. Any discharge or bleeding from the nipple.
6. An "orange peel" appearance of the skin of the bust.
7. Elevation of the breast.

Most of these symptoms can come from harmless conditions but you owe it to yourself to check on any one of them immediately.

The American Cancer Society has volunteered to send a copy of its free pamphlet on breast examination to readers of this column. If you wish a copy of it send your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SECT GIRL TO RETURN HOME?

Operation Refused Unless Blood Agreed

CALGARY (CP)—A Mayo Clinic spokesman was quoted Tuesday as saying in a phone call from Rochester, Minn., that surgery would not be performed on ailing Judy Madison of Turner Valley, Alta., unless prior permission is given for blood transfusions.

The clinic spokesman said the surgeon who would perform the operation "definitely will not operate unless he is granted permission to transfuse blood if necessary."

"As the child's mother has decided not to permit this, there will be no operation here. As a matter of fact, I would not be surprised if the Madisons left here soon to return home."

The five-year-old girl is suffering from a delicate heart condition which doctors say could prove fatal unless an operation is conducted to correct it.

Her parents, adherents of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, have refused permission on religious grounds to give their daughter a blood transfusion should one be required during the operation.

Recreation Aids Blind to Learn Life Enjoyment

Recreation plays a vital role in helping the blind to learn enjoyment of a fuller life, Canadian National Institute for the Blind recreation director J. Lewis said Monday at CNIB White Cane Cribbage and bowling windup in CNIB Service Centre.

Recreation affords opportunities for social contact, training in skills, exercise, broadening areas of interest, and accents abilities rather than disabilities, he said.

Mr. Lewis praised volunteer work which goes into CNIB, a Community Chest agency, making possible its Canada-wide service.

Prizes were presented to winners in each activity and refreshments served.

JACK BARRACLOUGH

20-Man Board Seek Chief Of Symphony

First meeting of the newly elected Victoria Symphony Society board of directors was held Tuesday. The 20-member board elected its executive but failed to appoint a president with the result that a committee was formed to seek a candidate to fill the vacancy left by retirement of former president, J. F. K. English.

Jack BarracloUGH was named first vice-president and J. Alan Baker, second. Mrs. Lillian Smith will continue to serve as secretary and Robert McKean consented to remain as treasurer for the time being.

Dreams Give Answers in Language Study

MONTREAL (CP) — Some bilingual persons dream in French, some in English and some in both languages, investigations made by Dr. Wallace E. Lambert, assistant professor of psychology at McGill University, show.

Dr. Lambert began his experiments four years ago at the University of North Carolina and has continued them at McGill, where for the last two years he and Dr. Jaroslav Havelka have been testing college students on the psychological aspects of bilingualism.

Dreamers have given McGill psychologists new clues to learning languages. If a person has learned a language through translation rather than by absorbing both language and culture of the country, he is more likely to dream in his mother tongue.

Experiments have shown that if a person likes the racial group whose language he wants to learn, he will learn quicker than if he just wants a second language for economic reasons.

The two types of bilingual folk—those who think in two languages and those who think in one language and translate into the other—are equally fluent, researchers have found.

Holiday hours for Victoria post office were announced today for May 21 by Postmaster R. F. Reid.

There will be no letter carrier delivery nor money order and savings bank service, and wicket service will be provided only between 10 a.m. and 12 noon. The public lobby will remain open until 6 p.m. and street letter box collections will be made in the evening only.

DRAMA FESTIVAL

Vancouver Group Likened to Pros

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—The Vancouver Little Theatre Association's performance of Darkness at Noon Tuesday night brought adjudicator Francoise Rosay before an audience of more than 700 to say she couldn't quite believe the players are amateurs.

The Vancouver group, presenting the second of eight plays competing for top honors in the Dominion Drama Festival finals here this week, was praised by the bilingual French stage and screen actress for good acting, clever lighting, scene changes and interesting stage sets.

The festival continues today with a matinee performance of Patrick Hamilton's Victorian thriller Angel Street by the Little Theatre Guild of Charlottetown, and the London Little Theatre's evening performance of Mrs. McThing, by Mary Chase.

POOR ACQUAINTANCES
Mrs. Rosay praised the Vancouver group for "very good" voices, but said some fault in the actors' articulation and poor acoustics in the St. Charles auditorium left some of the words difficult to understand.

She praised Frankie Johnson's portrayal of the prisoner Rubashov, a former Russian leader who finds himself in a Russian prison in 1937, charged with being a counter-revolutionary, and caught in the terrifying political machinery of his own making.

However, she said, there was not enough difference portrayed between the man in prison and the man in real life shown in author Sidney Kingsley's flash-backs into Rubashov's life.

Mrs. Rosay suggested that the play as a whole was "acted a little bit too English." It needed a little more passion in the love scenes between the Russian Rubashov and the girl Luba, played by Jean Brown.

KEPT IN SHADOW

Luba, Mrs. Rosay said, was a "charming young girl," but sometimes the play's lighting kept her too much in the shadow.

The dramatic ending of the play, which sees Rubashov led away to his death, in a crashing crescendo of off-stage music, and a flood of light, was "very effective," she said.

Officers Installed At Cosmopolitan Club Dinner

Officers of the Victoria Cosmopolitan Club were installed at a dinner and dance at the Chez Marcel Tuesday.

Named president was Les Lamb, succeeding Douglas Lawson.

Elected first vice-president was Jack Grieves; second vice-president, Harold Lees; recording secretary, Frank Bridges; corresponding secretary, Ken Larson, and sergeant at arms, Norman Buxton.

Named to the board of managers were Al Salter, Bill Westwood, Mike Andrews, Phil Neil, and Keith McEachern.

Installation was by Max Horning, international president of the club.

The club is currently sponsoring the "Parade of Magicians" show to be held June 1, 8 p.m., in Victoria High School.

40 MEET TO PROTEST FORCED PASTEURIZATION

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—City council was criticized by a number of local citizens for failing to back the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association in its protest against compulsory pasteurization. More than 40 persons attended the council meeting at which pasteurization was discussed and council was urged to introduce a by-law permitting sale of raw milk in the municipality.

Ottawa RCN Officer To Command Frigate

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt. Cmdr. Peter Chance, 35, of Ottawa and Halifax, has taken command of the naval frigate Outremont, succeeding Lt. Cmdr. 500 Emergency Units for Distribution Across Canada Says Gen. Worthington

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—A $10,000,000 program to buy 500 200-bed mobile hospitals for Canada's civil defence program was disclosed Tuesday.

Federal co-ordinator F. Worthington said one of the United States-manufactured hospitals — so compact it could be hauled in a tractor-trailer — already is at the Canadian civil defence college here.

A total of 20 already had been ordered and would be distributed throughout the country for emergency needs. Money for them already had been budgeted. The aim was to obtain during a period of years a total of 500 of the $20,000 units.

Addressing a four-day civil defence conference here, Gen. Worthington defined 13 Canadian cities as likely major targets in any thermonuclear war. Of citizens trapped in any target city that had no evacuation plan, he said: "I'm afraid there'd be a lot of harp given out."

Gen. Worthington also said the federal civil defence administration is seeking a cabinet order giving it first call on all supplies declared surplus by the armed forces.

EASTERN GAP

Palk's bay between India and the island of Ceylon is 40 miles across at its narrowest part.

ROYAL COMMISSION—Mrs. Lillian Torrance Newton of Montreal has been commissioned by the Canadian government to paint a state portrait of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. It is the first time a Canadian artist has been commissioned to do a state portrait of a reigning monarch.

ANCIENT ART—Dentistry was practised as a profession as early as 500 B.C. and probably before that.

Damage $1,000 As Home Burned

A house fire started by an person, and 11-year-old Leslie Laronde, 1923 Belmont, also caused about $1,000 damage to the home of Mrs. Pearl Cook, 1476 Gladstone, at about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Damage was confined mainly to an upstairs room and wall. Firemen said the blaze started in a wall from heat of a space-heater-toaster which had been left on. The toaster radiated heat through a thin coat of plaster and flames attacked the interior of the wall and spread.

The fire was first reported by telephone by an unidentified

IT MAY BE YOUR LIVER

If life's not worth living it may be your liver! It's a fact! It takes up to two pints of liver bile a day to keep your digestive tract in top shape! If your liver bile is not flowing freely your food may not digest... you bloat up your stomach... you feel constipated and all the fun and sparkle go out of life. There's where you need old gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills. These famous vegetable pills help stimulate the flow of liver bile. Soon your digestion starts functioning properly and you feel that happy days are here again! Don't ever stop work. Always keep Carter's Little Liver Pills on hand.

YOU MAY HAVE WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT!

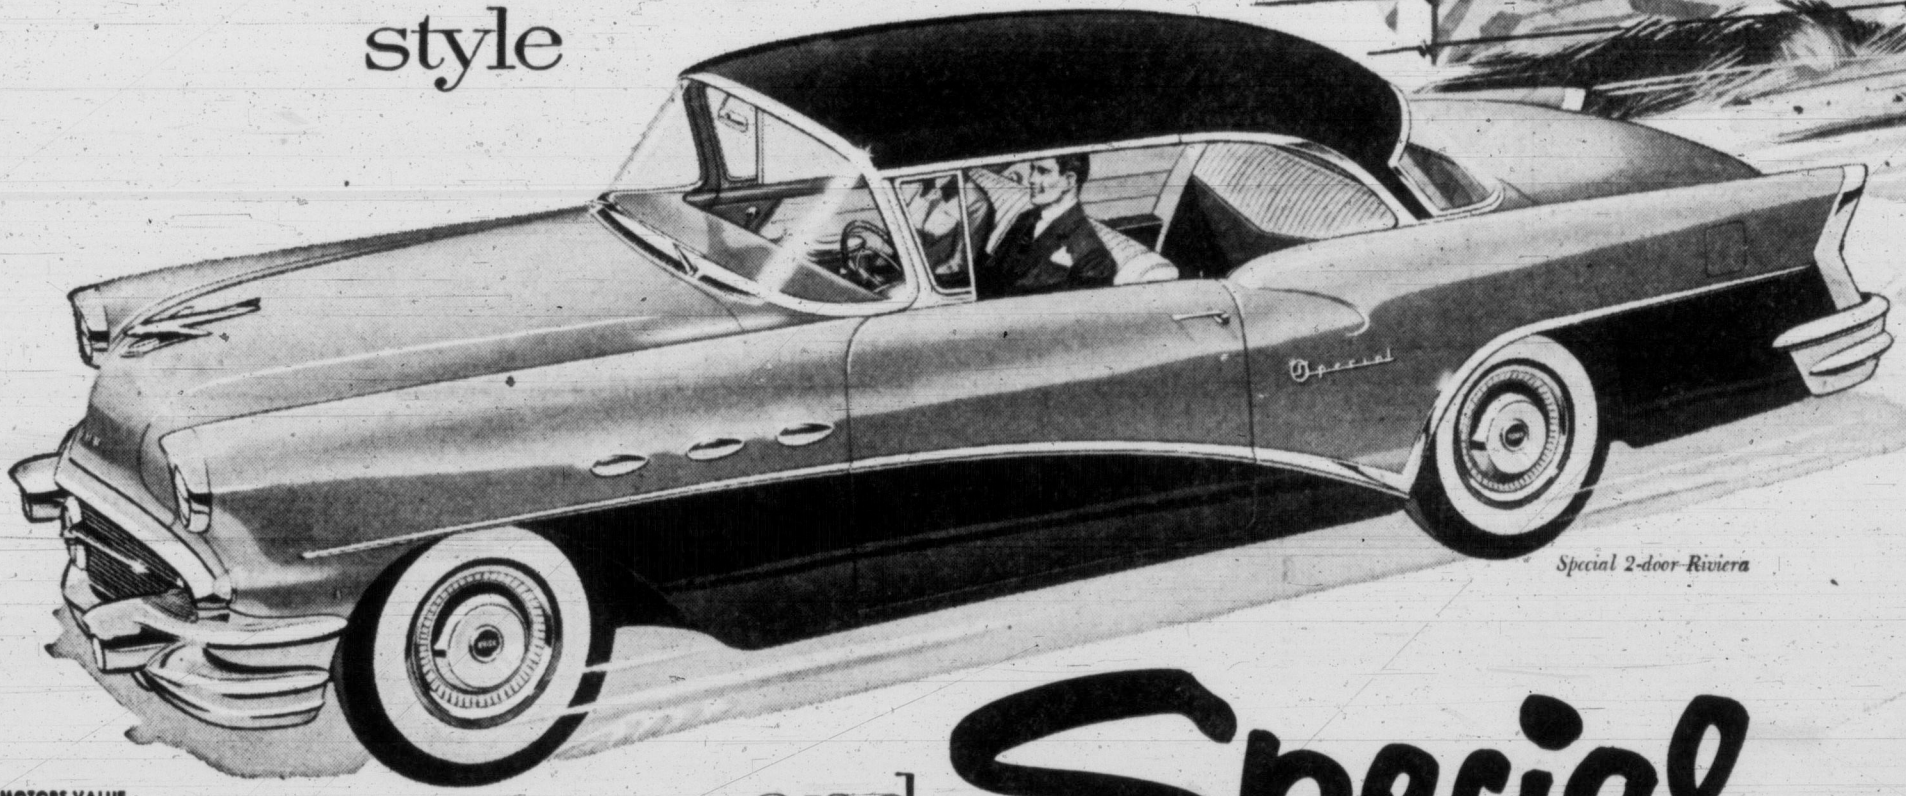

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin Worms... only parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of these ugly pests they must be killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. And that's exactly what JAYNE'S Vermifuge does... kills Pin Worms quickly and easily. Then they are expelled from the system in a normal manner and you are free of them.

If your own sake and the health of your children and loved ones, don't put off treatment. Get started with JAYNE'S at the very first sign of Pin Worms. For once established these parasites are highly contagious and often spread through entire families. So be sure to ask your druggist for JAYNE'S famous worm remedies for over one hundred years.

Calgary Youth Drowned in Seattle Lake

SEATTLE (AP) — Two University of Washington students were drowned in Green Lake Tuesday afternoon as several persons stood by thinking they were "playing around."

The victims were Fred E. Laing Jr., 24, Puyallup, Wash., and Richard F. Bartlett, 23, of Calgary. Both were engineering students.

A witness said Bartlett began going up and down in the water as he swam to a raft. Laing, who had reached the float, slipped back into the water and apparently went to the aid of Bartlett.

There are no life guards on duty yet at the Seattle park beaches.

The bodies were recovered. Bartlett was a nephew of Joseph Jameson, 2746 Foul Bay Road, Victoria. Nine years ago his father was killed in a traffic accident.

Black Magic Gets Post With Sarnia

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Signing of Joe (Black Magic) Zaleski as playing-coach of the re-organized Sarnia entry in the Ontario Rugby Football Union was announced by the club Tuesday.

Claude Irvine, management committee chairman, said Zaleski will come here about June 1 to discuss make-up of the 1956 squad. He will likely fill the quarterback spot as well as his coaching job.

Terms of the contract were not announced.

The 29-year-old reserve quarterback with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four last year had been given permission by Als' president Leo Dandurand to deal with Sarnia.

In Ottawa, manager J. P. McCaffrey of the Rough Riders said the club has waived Zaleski.

'As Wise Men Go So Goes Pearson' Keynotes New Set-Up for NATO

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The next six months will be important for NATO—and for External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada.

NATO — North Atlantic Treaty Organization — has just named Pearson one of the "Three Wise Men" who are to make a six-month study to see where the Western Alliance goes from here.

In accepting the appointment, along with Foreign Ministers Halvard Lange of Norway and Gaetano Martino of Italy, Pearson made a choice which may have a big bearing on his own future.

ISMAI'S SUCCESSOR
If the wise men succeed in their mission, the Canadian minister will undoubtedly succeed Britain's Lord Ismay as secretary-general of NATO, thus becoming in effect the Free World's leading Atlanticist.

If the wise men fail, Pearson may well lose some of his enthusiasm for the Atlantic idea. It is pretty well taken for granted that the NATO job will be his for the asking when Ismay retires next year. But if the wise men flop — and there are big difficulties ahead — Pearson may prefer to stay at home rather than fall heir to the frustrations of running the 15-power alliance from the secretary-general's desk in Paris.

"From now on, it would seem to be a case of — as the wise men go, so goes Mike Pearson," said one observer in Paris, where the mid-year meetings of NATO wound up May 6.

During those talks, Pearson emerged more emphatically as the key man in NATO. First there were the reports linking him with Ismay's post, then the announcement he would be one of the three-man ministerial committee labelled the Three Wise Men. The group has no chairman, but it seems to be instinctively taken for granted that the Canadian minister will be the leading spirit.

BACKING SOUGHT
Pearson will go first to Washington to find out the extent of American backing for a new look in NATO. He will be in London in June for the Commonwealth conference, when he will be able to probe British intentions, and the committee will probably get together then to set up a temporary headquarters in some European capital, presumably London or Paris.

Their report on whether NATO can do more in political and economic spheres now that the cold war is thawing will probably be submitted to the NATO council in December. It will be of immense significance.

Boy Scouts Plan Helpful Role in 4-Day Festivities

Boy Scouts and their leaders will play their usual helpful part in Victoria's Empire Day festivities, aiding elderly invalid persons to take part in the fun and taking their places in parades.

Scouters will transport wheel chair and other patients from Mount St. Mary's hospital to the green on Pandora Avenue Monday. Those with cars are asked to go to the hospital at 9:45 a.m.

Boy Scouts and Cubs taking part in the IOOE parade Friday will report to Scouters Martin Dawson at the Crystal Garden at 10:15 a.m.

FOR NO-HITTER

Carl's Bonus Has To Be Discreet

CINCINNATI (AP) — It was decided Tuesday after a long-distance debate that Carl Erskine can keep the $500 bonus he received from Brooklyn Dodgers for his second no-hitter Saturday.

However, the Dodgers will have to figure a way to make

Big Sneeze
WORCESTER, England (CP) — A housewife here took a pinch of snuff, sneezed and blew her false teeth down a flight of stone steps.

Municipal health officials allowed her a new set free of charge.

the reward legal in the eyes of National League president Warren Giles because bonuses for individual performances aren't permitted.

Giles opened the debate Tuesday by announcing he had written the Dodgers about the matter. "If the club hasn't given Erskine a bonus, I advised it not to do so. Or if it has, I have asked that Erskine return it."

In Brooklyn, Brook president Walter O'Malley replied: "We are not Indian givers. If Mr. Giles has ruled on the matter, we will respect his ruling. But, in compliance, we will not penalize Erskine for having been Brooklyn's first two-time no-hit pitcher."

This, in turn, was relayed to Giles, and he answered: "I'm sure Brooklyn can find a way to reward Erskine without violating the rules."

One method to escape a violation of the rules and still give Erskine the $500 for his 3-0 job on New York Giants would be to tear up his present contract and give him a new one — with a $500 increase in salary.

Queen Denies Margaret's Engagement

LONDON (AP)—The Royal Family today officially denied that Princess Margaret is likely to be engaged to marry Prince Christian of Hanover.

A statement issued at Clarence House, the princess' home, said: "The press secretary of the Queen is authorized to say that the report that Princess Margaret is likely to become engaged to Prince Christian of Hanover is untrue."

The 35-year-old prince, German-born director of a London shipping firm, simultaneously issued a similar denial.

His statement said: "I wish to deny the story that I might become engaged to Princess Margaret and to say that there is no truth in these rumors."

The Daily Express quoted the 35-year-old Christian as saying "I can neither confirm nor deny" the rumor.

The informant said the prince's command of English was not the best and he apparently had made this statement in reply to questions without quite realizing its implications.

The fair-haired six-foot prince is a director of a London shipping company. He and Margaret have rarely been in one another's company.

B.C. Power Body Will Reveal New Rates Next Week

B.C. Power Commission customers will know next week whether their electricity bills will be higher.

The commission said today that "recent rate studies have been completed, and an announcement of the results is expected next week."

Increases are expected in a majority of the commission's power districts. The commission said the purpose of the rate study has been "to insure adequate revenue to meet increasing costs," and to "achieve a simplification of the rate structure."

'Thought It Was a Bomb' Says Jet Crash Witness

Tremor Felt For 100 Miles

ONSLow, Australia (Reuters)—Britain exploded an "atomic device" on a high steel tower in the remote Monte Bello islands today, setting off a flash like a sheet of lightning clearly visible here.

People in this northeast Australian port, 100 miles from the test site, felt a rumble like thunder and saw the familiar mushroom-shaped "atomic" cloud rise high over the horizon.

It turned pink in color as Canberra jet bombers streaked through its centre taking air scoops of radioactive samples.

An official announcement based on a naval signal flashed from the headquarters ship, Narvik, said the weapon was detonated successfully at 3.51 a.m. Greenwich mean time, 6.51 p.m. MDT Tuesday.

Seven minutes later, ONSlow—about 100 miles from the Monte Bello site—felt a rumble like thunder and a slight tremor at the jetty.

THIRD TEST

This was Britain's third atomic test series, and the second on the barren Monte Bello. A fourth series is scheduled for October or November, at Maralinga, native name for "field of thunder" in the western Australian desert.

ABOARD U.S.S. MT. McKINLEY at Bikini, Thursday, May 17 (UP)—Unfavorable winds moved in on this mid-Pacific test site today, threatening another postponement of America's first hydrogen bomb air drop.

Less than five hours before the scheduled shot time a bad wind pattern developed and test officials said they would have to make another study before deciding whether to proceed.

New Boundaries Will Simplify Taxation Issue

Saanich and the provincial government have agreed to make some changes to the southwest boundary of the municipality where properties are split between Crown and municipal territory.

The boundary line changes will effect properties chiefly located on the west side of Burnside Road—about 15 residences.

Under the agreement, the new boundary line instead of cutting across lots will zig-zag back and forth leaving properties either wholly within the municipality or in provincial territory.

This will simplify taxation problems.

Some residents now in provincial territory will find themselves in the near future in Saanich with the possibility of having to pay slightly higher taxes.

Rails Ask 15% Hike

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian railways today applied to the board of transport commissioners for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates to offset wage boosts to employees and higher operating costs.

"I feel this system of grants is a very good idea," said Mr. Norris.

Reeve Arthur Ash, of Saanich, said "I agree with Reeve Norris' suggestion that we perhaps pool the grant that would come to the Greater Victoria area."

"This is an ideal situation for inter-municipal co-operation," said Reeve Ash. "It is too bad similar situations in the past have not been acted upon because of a lack of willingness to discuss them with a co-operative spirit."

He said the grants were "excellent."

SOMETHING OF VALUE

Mayor Percy Scurrell, of Victoria, said "I agree—you could do something with over $140,000."

"I like the idea of pooling resources from all the municipalities, to build something worthwhile," said Mayor Scurrell.

"We could build something of value to all," he said.

Mayor Scurrell also thought there would be merit in pooling the $50,000 available for staging a centennial celebration.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Esquimalt, said "I think Mayor Scurrell is right. It is probably the best thing to pool the money."

"But," he said, "this matter will have to be discussed with council. They might have something in mind for Esquimalt alone, this being the oldest settlement."

Reeve Wurtele thought the grant system "sounds very, very nice."

GIRL, 14, SAYS:

'I Saw the Plane Hit Building'

Editor's note: The following is an eyewitness account of Tuesday night's crash of a CF-100 fighter plane into the Villa St. Louis convent, near Orleans, given by a 14-year-old girl whose parents operate a store and lunch counter in the neighborhood.

BY GLORIA FLORA
As Told to British United Press

OTTAWA (BUP)—I will never forget last night's horror as long as I live. Many nuns I knew and loved were burned to death when the plane crashed into the convent.

I can't forget their screams and the terrible crackle of the flames as the convent burned and crumpled.

Mommy tried to stop me going outside when we first heard the jet over our shop. It seemed to be only a few feet away. I went out and now I am sorry I did.

I saw the burning plane hit the beautiful building. We all loved the convent, especially the little chapel where I have often attended mass.

I saw the chapel last night as I had never seen it before. The jet had crashed near the wall separating it from the other part of the main building and the chapel was lit up by the rockets bursting and later the fire that burned down everything.

Mommy and I just stood there and cried. We couldn't do anything for the crying nuns because we were too far away and the men of Hiawatha Park could only get a few of them out.

I felt sick as I heard the screams die down, and Mommy and I went back inside.

Rev. Richard M. Ward of Toronto, one of the victims of the Orleans jet crash, was "Father Dick" to hundreds of officers and men in the Pacific Command.

One of the most popular and most sincerely liked chaplains ever to serve on this coast, he was Pacific Command chaplain (RC) from January, 1952, to September, 1954.

"Father Dick" was a quiet-spoken, unassuming man, with a level, even temper. He was equally at home in wardroom, mess flat, or chapel; he enjoyed conversational relaxation, dispensed advice, spiritual and temporal counsel quietly and effectively.

At the time of his death, aged 42, he was an assistant chaplain of the fleet. He lived at the nuns' residence and, in addition to his naval duties, served as parish priest to the surrounding community.

For four years, "Father Dick" was chaplain in the aircraft carrier HMCS Magnificent. When Canada sent destroyers to the Korean war to assist United Nations forces, he was flown to the Far East, where he acted as chaplain to all three of the destroyers first on the station—HMCS Ships Sioux, Athabaskan and Cayuga. He was in Korea for more than a year.

PM 'Shocked' by Tragedy Offers Official Sympathy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today he is deeply shocked at the death last night of 15 persons by the crash of an RCAF jet fighter into the convent home of the Grey Nuns of the Cross seven miles east of Orleans.

His statement said:

"In the name of the government and on my own behalf, I would express my most sincere sympathy to the distinguished community of the Grey Nuns of the Cross and to the families of the unfortunate victims of the disaster."

"FATHER DICK" WARD

Father Ward had been an assistant Roman Catholic chaplain of the fleet since September, 1954. His next of kin is his mother, Mrs. Mary Ward of Toronto. He was ordained a secular priest in the Toronto diocese June 3, 1939, and entered the navy as a chaplain in 1944.

Victim Identified

CALGARY (CP)—RCAF officials at Quesnel Tuesday identified as LAC William Alexander Hopping, 35, of Vancouver, the airman who was killed in a head-on crash between two cars which took three lives Monday.

"I trust that the number of victims will not increase beyond that actually known at the present time, and I would extend to the injured my best wishes for a prompt recovery."

Property damage increased to $2,152,078 compared with $1,874,517, and personal injuries from 1,161 in the first three months of 1955 to 1,231 for 1956.

During March itself there were 11 fatal accidents this year; last year during the month there were nine.

Death Toll at 15 In Ottawa Tragedy

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—Flaming death Tuesday night plunged out of a dark night sky and enveloped aging nuns in white-hot metal and falling bricks.

Fifteen persons died in the fire and ammunition explosions that followed an RCAF CF-100 jet's plummet, like a giant arrow, into the centre of a three-story convalescent home for Grey Nuns near this town seven miles east of Orleans. Four others were injured.

"I thought it was a bomb... it was horrible," said an eyewitness, Sister Louise Auguste, one of 22 who escaped.

"It reminded me of Dante's inferno... I'll never forget the screams as long as I live," said Lawrence Baker. He was among the first to reach the scene, and took part in fruitless rescue attempts.

Eleven Roman Catholic nuns—their ages ranged from 21 to 77—the plane's two-man crew, a priest and a laywoman cook perished in the inferno lit when the rocket-armed twin-jet smashed into the nunnery after a dive from 33,000 feet.

The air force disclosed today that the 17-ton CF-100 of air defence command was ordered into the air to identify a plane which turned out to be an RCAF North Star coming in from Resolute Bay in the Arctic and whose flight had been delayed.

By a cruel stroke of fate, the plane struck the only building of any size in the small community of Hiawatha Park.

All around the home are open fields.

One Second Meant Life or Death

One second was the measure between life and death for those asleep in the nunnery.

Given that second the CF-100 would have skimmed the convent's roof to crash in the open fields or the Ottawa river.

The crewmen would have died—but the others would have lived.

The fighter struck one wall of the three-story brick building and plunged onward into its centre.

Bricks and masonry were strewn around the green lawns surrounding the convent.

Steel girders of the home were twisted into agonizing shapes by the heat.

The explosion was heard as far as 15 miles.

The flaming building, brightly silhouetted against the night sky, could be seen from miles away.

Hours after the thundering crash, coal stored in the basement still fed the fire.

Partially-tumbled walls of the three-story structure still stood today along with the 40-foot chimney. A warped steel fire escape clung crazily to one wall.

Spectators Clog Highways

Crowds streamed in cars to the scene from Ottawa and other nearby communities. Highways became clogged. Drivers pulled their cars into ditches as far as two miles from the scene and walked the rest of the way.

Sister Marie Emond, assistant-general of the order, said there were 35 persons in the convent and that 22, including the four injured, escaped.

RCAF searchers today found parts of at least two bodies, including skulls and chest bones.

Investigators gathered up all aircraft pieces they could find, no matter how minute.

Firemen said it may be days before the white-hot debris cools enough so that all bodies can be recovered. Even then positive identification might be virtually impossible.

First body identified was that of navy chaplain Rev. Richard Ward, 42, of Toronto, a veteran of the Korean War. His burned body was apparently hurled onto the lawn by the explosion.

Air defence command at St. Hubert, Que., said the rocket-laden CF-100's last reported altitude was 33,000 feet. When last heard from, the pilot had given no indication of any difficulty.

The nunnery, known as Villa St. Louis, was about one mile north of the main Ottawa-Montreal highway. The Ottawa river flowed by its front door.

The CF-100 came like a bomb out of an overcast and hazy sky. Here is how Sister Louise Auguste, of St. Arsenne de Temisque, Que., one of the surviving nuns, described it:

"I had just prepared to go to bed when the crash came. The plane came over and then hit the middle of the roof and blew up."

"The whole building seemed to burst into flames at once. I think everyone on the top floor must

RCAF Pilot Killed

CONTROVERSIAL GAS LOAN RESOLUTION PASSED

OTTAWA (BUP)—Members of Parliament went home with the milkman today after sitting for more than 14 hours and passing the preliminary resolution on the government's pipelines legislation, 158 to 54.

The Commons began its sitting at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday, and sat around the clock—and more—with only a supper recess.

Until 1 a.m. it debated Trade Minister C. D. Howe's controversial pipelines resolution in committee, with speeches limited to 20 minutes. The axe was to have fallen at 1 a.m. under the closure rule, employed for the first time since 1932, but opposition members raised repeated points of order and forced vote after vote in a determined fight.

It was 2.45 a.m. before the resolution was passed in committee, and concurred in by the House. Then a new point of order was raised by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), declaring the House could not proceed further, when Howe asked for "leave to introduce" the formal legislation based on his resolution.

Earlier in the morning, Fulton came near being named when he raised repeated points of order. Being named in Parliament entails the expulsion of the errant member for the balance of the sitting, or as long as the House directs, as punishment for violating the rules.

The House adjourned at 4.43 a.m.—a sitting lasting 14 hours and 13 minutes—with a two-hour supper recess—and took nine votes, all but two of them following the expected adjournment hour of 1 a.m.

Fulton and Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) led the procedural debates, arguing that after having completed the committee study of Howe's resolution, the House should not be asked to permit introduction of his bill based on it. But Speaker Rene Beaudin, quoting a desk full of constitutional and procedural authorities, put question after question, and sustained appeal after appeal, until the bill was formally presented.

The House retained good humor and a high attendance figure all night. When members finally adjourned with the sky beginning to brighten and the birds singing, even though it was raining, there were still over 200 of the 263 voting members present.

Despite the heat of the arguments, the good humor remained. As evidence: Liberal members somewhere in the middle of the night found a big all-day sucker, five inches in diameter, and sent it across the chamber to Knowles.

Despite the heat of the arguments, the good humor remained. As evidence: Liberal members somewhere in the middle of the night found a big all-day sucker, five inches in

The House roared with laughter when, during one vote, Howe sat at his desk behind a newspaper which had, on its back page, the rest of the chamber, a big full-page ad printed in red advertising: "My Leadership Sale." Howe turned the paper over to see what provoked the mirth, and laughed himself.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent attended the marathon sitting closely, reading most of the time from a red leather-bound gilt-edged volume. Towards the end of the sitting, he joined in the laughs at weary sallies between government and opposition members.

He broke his silence on the measure only once. In answer to prodding from Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin Simcoe) Mr. St. Laurent said, "I would rather be silent than speak like you."

It was the first time since the Second World War that the Commons sat through the night to daybreak. But it has longer sittings, at the tail-end of sessions in which the Commons began at 11 a.m. and wound up at 3 a.m. the following day.

Howe's bill was fated for the same strenuous debate on the second reading stage. But the government gave no notice Tuesday night or this morning that it would immediately move to impose closure again. It was considered probable that the government first would allow two or three free days of debate on the principle of the measure.

have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out.

"I had just time to run out and help out a few sisters who were disabled. Then the whole building seemed to go up like a torch."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb."

Lawrence Barber, one of the first to reach the scene, said he climbed a fire escape up what was left of one wall.

BANGING ON WALLS

"But I couldn't get in because of the flames," he said. "They (the nuns) were banging on the walls inside."

Mrs. Marie Flora, who operates a small restaurant about half a mile from the convent, said the plane was as fire as it went over.

"The whole house shook," she said. "They didn't have a chance."

$1 MILLION LOSS

The two-year-old nunnery was destroyed and loss was estimated at $1,000,000. Only a few sections of brick wall were left standing.

"It's still a total mystery," said Group Capt. Frank Miller, commander of the Uplands base. "It's unlikely the plane was on fire before the crash, despite what eye-witnesses said. It would be almost a one-in-a-million shot that it was on fire."

Verne Ayrhart, one of the rescuers, said screens on the windows hampered escape. He said he smashed in one screen and helped pull out two nuns.

"I can hear the screams yet," he said.

WORST OF ITS TYPE

The accident was the worst of its type in Canada. On April 23, 1944, an RCAF four-engine Liberator bomber crashed into a Montreal tenement district, killing 16 persons.

Worst air accident in Canada occurred Jan. 26, 1950, when 44 persons were lost in the disappearance over the Yukon of a U. S. transport en route from Alaska to Texas.

Worst civilian air crash in Canada was the April 8, 1954, collision between a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star and an RCAF Harvard trainer over Moose Jaw, Sask. Thirty-seven died.

The scene at 9 a.m. today was one of devastation and mud—mud churned up in the fields around the ruins by bulldozers and other heavy clearing equipment brought in by the RCAF.

FLY OVER SITE

Two RCAF helicopters flew over the site of devastation in an effort to determine the angle and direction from which the plane made its fatal plunge.

One air force officer, who declined to be quoted by name, said a "slash" in the wreckage was visible from the air. He said this would indicate the plane crashed after a fairly steep dive.

This was borne out by an eye-witness, Mrs. Joseph Carriere, who lives across the road a few hundred yards from the scene. She said she saw the plane circling before it made its plunge and that it came down fairly steeply.

GAVE LAST RITES

Rev. Ernest Preseault, parish priest for the area, said the convent was a mass of flames when he arrived Tuesday night about 20 minutes after the crash. He gave the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to Father Ward whose burned body was found outside the building.

The air force moved in a 100-man debris crew which began removing much of the rubble by hand.

Crash Cause Unknown Says Campney

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney told the Commons today the cause of the CF-100 jet's crash at nearby Orleans last night is still unknown.

The minister visited the scene of the tragedy earlier today.

He said the plane was one of two CF-100 jets sent aloft at 9.30 p.m. to intercept an aircraft spotted by radar which was not immediately identifiable.

Mr. Campney said one of the jets returned to base under radar control. The other reported it still had excess fuel and would stay up a while longer.

That was its last radio transmission.

NUN DESCRIBES DRAMA OF DEATH

'Whole Building Seemed To Burst into Flames'

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—"It was horrible... the whole building seemed to burst into flames at once... I thought it was a bomb."

In those terse phrases Sister Louise Auguste described the grim drama of death she witnessed when an RCAF CF-100 jet fighter came screaming out of the night sky to plunge into a convalescent home of the Roman Catholic Grey Nuns near this village of 700.

Sister Auguste, a native of St. Arsene de Temisque, Que., was one of the fortunate. She escaped unhurt.

"The plane came over and then hit the middle of the roof and blew up," Sister Auguste said. "I think everyone on the top floor must have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out. It happened so fast no one can tell about it."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb. Then the fuel from on the walls inside," he added. Richard Dinis, 16, told how he grabbed one nun by the billowing sleeve of her nightgown, which was afire. He led her from the building but his hand and arm was badly burned.

Ray Rainville said one aged nun was coaxed into jumping to safety. "I grabbed her in my arms as she jumped and went down on my back with the weight. She hurt her back seriously."

Lawrence Barber, one of the first on the scene, said the fighter plunged straight through one wall of the brick convent. Barber said he climbed a fire escape "but I couldn't get in because of the flames."

"They (the nuns) were banging

Our Very Own Guide to Victoria (For Tourists, But Not Necessarily)

Victoria is situated on an island separated from everywhere by ferry and air services operating on standard or daylight time, depending on which your watch isn't set at. This makes it difficult to get to Victoria, and is just as well.

Some people reach Victoria by swimming, but this is not generally recommended unless you are Bert Thomas. If you DO happen to have the kind of watch which enables you to catch a ferry or a plane (remember you are allowed to catch only one ferry or plane per day, must throw back all those under the limit, and this in open season only) you will be amazed at the sights which greet your eyes when you arrive in Victoria.

Victoria is different to most cities. Its brick buildings, for the most part, are built of bricks. Its streets are paved, often reaching in unbroken, smooth stretches for as much as six yards between pot-holes.

A fact the visitor will notice immediately — and will cause him to unlimber his camera — is this: nearly all the natives of Victoria have only one head!

Victoria, of course, is widely regarded as a "Little bit of Old England." This is especially evident in the commercial eating places (known, in the quaint, old English vernacular as cafes, restaurants, coffee shops and cafeterias).

In these typically English eateries, one can enjoy the Strathcona's barbecued spareribs; the Jolly Friar's chile con carne; the House of Chan's chow mein; the Chez Marcel's baked snails; the Princess Mary's clam chowder; Mac's hamburger de luxe.

But if one should tire of the predominantly English menu offered one, one can always take time out to admire Victoria's unique scenery. To name only one outstanding attraction, feast your eyes on the Olympic Mountains, displayed through the kind permission of the United States of America, Union-48, Dwight D. Eisenhower, president.

Little known facts about Victoria: There is a fountain at the Fountain Circle... lightning has never known to strike at Thunderbird Park... the lawn of the Legislative Buildings is largely composed of grass... Beacon Hill was named because there used to be a beacon there... the swans in Goodacre Lake have long necks... Goodacre isn't a very large lake... the new Island Highway is so-called to differentiate it from the old Island Highway... Little Saanich Mountain certainly isn't very large... there is a naval base at Esquimalt, but very few oranges are grown there... Victoria is about as far West in Canada as you can go without falling into the ocean, which many people do... Victoria's principle import is retired farmers from the Prairies... Smith street was named after a man named Smith.

We do hope you will enjoy your stay with us, and brought lots of traveller's checks (in Victoria, they are spent "cheques," but the end result is much the same).

CGE Company Soon to Need Plant in B.C.

The day is not far distant when the Canadian General Electric Company will need a manufacturing plant on the Pacific Coast, says James Haswell Goss, president and chief executive officer of the company, who arrived in Victoria from his Toronto headquarters today.

"It is impossible to put a date on this development," the 48-year-old executive told The Times. "But it is a logical sequel to our expanding business and we have been studying it on a continuing basis for some time."

WITH CHAIRMAN

Mr. Goss is accompanied on a tour of the company's western offices by Harold M. Turner, chairman of the board, and J. H. Smith, vice-president and general manager of the apparatus department.

They met local businessmen at a private luncheon at the Empress Hotel today given by J. George Duck, branch sales manager in charge of the Victoria office. Guests included G. Fitzpatrick Dunn, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Ald. Austin Curtis, vice-president, and Hector L. Crombie, secretary manager.

FAST INCREASE

Mr. Goss said the company's personnel has grown from 4,600 in 1939 to a present strength of 16,000. Its manufacturing output last year was valued at $218,000,000.

"We plan to double our output during the next 10 years and to double it again between 1966 and 1976. That is our target and present indications are we shall be able to meet it."

Mr. Goss joined the parent General Electric Co. at Schenectady in 1931 as a student engineer. After holding various executive appointments in the United States, he was appointed president of the Canadian company in 1955.

Mr. Turner, also a native of the United States, has been with Canadian General Electric since 1926 and was elected chairman of the board last year. He is now a Canadian citizen.

He sees great industrial potentialities in the west and is impressed by the "stability" of business conditions in Victoria.

LACK ENGINEERS

"There is a continuing shortage of skilled engineering personnel needed to keep abreast of our industrial expansion," Mr. Turner said.

"At the moment we are interested in levelling the manufacturing load to eliminate, as far as possible, the peak periods of production and consequent slack periods."

Both Mr. Turner and Mr. Goss agreed that the development of automation offers no threat to employment. They believe the demand for skilled personnel will continue indefinitely.

College Militaire Sword Won by City Naval Cadet

Victoria naval officer cadet Leofric Temple, 20, son of Mrs. V. E. Temple, 174 Olive, was winner of an officer's sword award for being the best executive cadet in College Militaire Royal de St. Jean graduating class at the weekend.

Here to visit his mother, Cadet Temple will resume training for summer months at Royal Roads Saturday with naval officer cadets from other Canadian Services Colleges.

In September he will enter the Royal Canadian Navy as a midshipman to supplement his three years of service college training.

The sword, a regular naval officer's pattern, is presented by the Navy League of Canada and competed for by all cadets who will enter the RCN after graduation.

Cadet Temple was born in Prince Albert, Sask., came to Victoria in 1948 and graduated from Victoria High School in 1953. He served with Royal Canadian Sea Cadets during high school.

Former Forests Minister Not To Be Called

Sloan Not Hearing
Sommers, Kenney

Former Social Credit Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers will not be called before the Sloan Royal Commission on Forestry.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan announced today he has decided to turn down a request by counsel appearing before the commission that Mr. Sommers be "invited" to appear.

Former Liberal lands and forests minister E. Kenney was included in the request.

Gordon Gibson, former Liberal M.L.A. for Lillooet, initiated the "call Sommers" action. He said Mr. Sommers, who resigned with a blast at what he termed a "conspiracy" in the logging industry, should be called on to substantiate his charges.

Mr. Gibson later withdrew his motion "if it will help in having him brought here."

But Ron Howard, counsel for Western Forest Management Association and Lawrence Eckhardt, B.C. Truck Loggers, asked the commissioner to "invite" both Mr. Sommers and Mr. Kenney.

QUOTES PRECEDENTS

Chief Justice Sloan, in issuing his ruling, said he was acting on long-standing precedents to the effect that a minister of the Crown has to answer only to the Legislative Assembly, and ultimately the electorate, for his decisions while in office.

He said a court, or a tribunal, had no right to call on a minister, or a former minister, and ask him to "explain or justify" his policies.

On a second portion of the request by Mr. Howard and Mr. Eckhardt, that both former ministers be called to answer questions dealing only with administration — as separate from policy — the chief justice said every member of the B.C. Forest Service had been made available to answer questions dealing with administration.

LAWSUITS PENDING

He said he would reconsider his ruling only if counsel could frame questions dealing with administration which could not be proven by cross-examination of forest service officials.

Mr. Sommers resigned his portfolio in Premier Bennett's cabinet after denying he had accepted bribes in his office as forests minister.

He has filed suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy, who made the initial charges against the minister.

Pistol-Waving Incident Brings Plea of Guilty

Plea of guilty to a charge of being in possession of a firearm without a permit was entered in city police court today for Stuart D. Robertson, 28, Victoria.

Robertson was arrested Saturday afternoon after a pistol-waving incident in Chinatown.

He will again appear in court Thursday for sentence on the charge.

Police testified today that Robertson was arrested at Johnson and Douglas streets after he had been waving a pistol in the 500 block Fisgard.

A revolver was found under the seat of the truck he had been driving and a full clip of ammunition was also found by police, court heard.

Police said the man had been drinking.

Drought Since April 1; No Relief in Sight

Continued hot, dry weather on Lower Vancouver Island, with temperatures edging into the 70's and clear, sunny skies, is causing concern to farmers who fear damage to hay and cereal crops.

In a near-drought period, this area has received only one-quarter inch of rain since April 1. This is the time of year when field crops need a heavy supply of water, and, unless rain falls within the next two weeks, growers forecast a reduction in the hay crop and a shortage of feed for farm animals.

The official forecast calls for a continuation of warm weather, with temperatures reaching at least 70, and likely more, today and Thursday.

NO SIGN OF CHANGE

A high-pressure ridge continues to produce sunny skies, and the meteorological office sees no sign of rain in the near future. Winds will remain northerly and light, up to a maximum of 15 miles per hour.

Some farmers complain that lack of rain has stopped field growth completely, especially on the high levels.

Fruit and vegetable growers have on the whole been able to combat the dry spell through the use of modern sprinkler systems which were introduced to the Island several years ago.

Artificial water reserves are providing the strawberry and loganberry crops with sufficient moisture.

Horticulturists said the artificial water reserves on Island farms have saved fruit growers from serious damage.

A few years ago, a dry spell like this would have been a serious concern to berry growers, they said.

Some of the dairy farms with large areas for grazing and for cereal crops were not so fortunate, they said, because it was impossible to get water to the land without installing elaborate irrigation systems.

Last Call for Shots Against Polio Issued

Last call for anti-polio injections for children who will start school this fall was issued by Victoria-Esquamalt health authorities today.

Parents of all youngsters who were registered for Salk injections this spring should present them at the city health clinic on Thursday between 9 and 11 a.m.

A similar clinic was held on Monday but many of the children whose names were registered did not appear.

Health authorities warn supplies are dwindling and it is not yet known when more Salk vaccine will be available.

Injections were being given today at S. J. Willis High School. All youngsters up to Grade 9 will have received one injection by May 25.

City Man Awaits Theft Sentence

Sentence will be imposed in Saanich police court next Wednesday on William Russell Fowler, Victoria, who pleaded guilty today to a charge of stealing money and cheques of a sum over $50.

Fowler was arrested at about 1 a.m. today, police said.

Court was told Fowler was given $180 in cash and $279 in cheques to bank for his employer, Ken Salmon. He failed to bank the cash and cheques.

Police said $100 of the amount was missing when the accused was searched after arrest.

MOUNT TOLMIE PROJECT OKAY 'IKELY TODAY

A road widening and parking area project to accommodate up to 30 cars on top of Mount Tolmie was expected to be approved later today at an annual meeting of Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks committee.

Cost was set at about $1,000.

The committee, comprised of city and Saanich council members toured district recreational facilities this morning.

SCOUTS' MORTGAGE PAID

Seven years of struggle ended Tuesday night when the title to the Elks' Own Scout Hall on Kings Road was turned over to the Elks Lodge by the group of citizens who had guaranteed its discharge. In front of the hall are two of the group, T. H. Armstrong and J. S. Quissey. Others included S. Fevang, F. Taylor, C. C. Howard, R. E. Jones, P. Bogeland, R. Clements, J. R. Begg and the late Jim Kinnett.

Gorge Swimming Ban Sure To Be Lifted

An 18-year ban on swimming in Gorge waters will be lifted by official proclamation either Thursday or Friday.

Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy said today the action now only awaits last-minute talks with Saanich health officer, Dr. A. N. Beattie.

The announcement follows preparation of a final report on Gorge purity by city sanitary inspector Elwood Groppe following tests Tuesday.

Mr. Groppe said this morning his report was to be submitted to Dr. Mahaffy later today. He said his final tests led him to recommend the ban be lifted.

It was imposed about 1938 when septic tank run-off raised the bacterial count of the inland waterway to a dangerous level. In recent years, new sewers have removed this hazard.

Tuesday's tests measured the flow of harbor contamination into the Gorge and dye placed in the harbor did not pass into the Gorge narrows with the tide.

AWAIT BEACHES

Health authorities stressed earlier that the official opening of the Gorge would be delayed until proper beach facilities have been constructed.

Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee acted on that matter this morning. An inspection party comprised of city and Saanich council members visited the beach below Tillam Bridge.

The committee agreed that they would recommend naming of this area "Kinsmen Beach" if the service club would undertake to provide lavatory facilities.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, who is also chairman of the Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, said he will ask the clubmen also to undertake project.

people father afield. He recalled a YMCA camp which once was located in a quiet bay behind the BCE park. Whether it will be revived is not yet known.

An early meeting of the inter-municipal and inter-governmental Gorge Waterway Improvement Association is expected to be called shortly. To be considered are methods of raising funds for dredging of the Gorge and additional beach reconstruction in other areas, such as the north shore of the Gorge headwater, Portage Inlet.

Government Closes Offices on Monday

All provincial government offices will close next Monday for observance of the Queen's birthday and the Victoria Day holiday.

The provincial museum will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday.

10 New Fires In Coast Area

Ten new fires have broken out in the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island as continued dry weather makes conditions hazardous in the woods.

A total of 33 fires are now burning, the B.C. Forest Service reported today.

Fairly high humidity is helping to keep them in check, the service said.

It is hoped that spring's green growth will ease the situation. "If the humidity will only stay high a little while longer, we'll have enough green growth to help check the fires," a forestry official said.

Many of the 33 fires are "all but extinguished," he said.

Jaycees' Rodeo Finals Saturday At BCE Bus Depot

Junior Chamber of Commerce "teen age" rodeo finals will be held Saturday starting at 9 a.m. at the B.C. Electric bus depot, Garbally Road, it was announced today.

There are 26 entrants, one a girl.

Competitors will drive new cars supplied by local car dealers. The competition is expected to take about four hours.

Winner will get an all-expense trip to Vancouver to compete in regional rodeo finals there the first week in June. He, or she, will also get a food mixer here. Other prizes are seat covers, a tool kit and car polish kits. Prizes have been donated by local business men.

Presentations will be made by Jaycee president Stickney Harris.

Judges will be Lorne Markley, Art Sharpe, Sgt. Brooke Douglas, Peter Allen, Fred Davison and Art Watson.

LOOK-SEE TOUR, his second, is being undertaken by Premier W. A. C. Bennett today. During next three days he will visit Nanaimo and other up-island centres, addressing a Social Credit rally in the Hub city tonight.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Leather and Metal Combine

By PENNY SAVER

There was a time when key chains were mere key chains, but my, have they changed! You can find anything from a miniature tool kit to manicure articles concealed in the cleverly designed baubles and novelty charms on the chains. A T-shaped plastic and metal charm about an inch long is a miniature hammer. Unscrew the bottom, and out come three small tools—a saw blade, screwdriver and drill. They fit into a slot found beneath the hammer head. You can actually use them, and they're perfect replicas of the larger combination tool sets that proved to be such welcomed gifts around Christmas. A gold-plated chain and key ring, with charm, costs $2.

From a tiny tartan golf bag that's bound in leather, pokes a cluster of clubs. Pull them out, and instead of handles, you'll find a nail file as the base. This one costs $1.50.

An old-fashioned lamp made of gold metal and mauve and gold leather has a hinged top. Inside is a thimble, three tiny spools of thread, a small safety pin and a needle. If he doesn't want to sew on a button or two, even with such convenience, at least he has the needle and thread all ready for someone who's willing to do it for him! This key chain costs $1.

The outdoor type? He'll get a bit of a chuckle out of the small, leather-bound compass that hangs from another key chain. It's accurate, and bound in good leather. It's $1.50.

At the same price a leather case containing a pair of small dice forms the novel charm for this key chain.

If you have a fisherman in the family, you'll be interested to know that the handy fishermen's knives have arrived back in town. A single blade is set into a cork block, so that even if he drops it in the stream or lake, it won't be lost, because it will float to the surface, and stay afloat indefinitely. These good-looking and welcome gifts cost $1.75.

If, while browsing through the column, you come across articles that interest you, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you the names of the stores where they may be found.

Speaker Describes
Hospital Therapy

Rehabilitation where possible and recreation in a happy atmosphere were described by Miss Helen Egan as the aims of the occupational therapy department of the Gorge Hospital.

Speaking after the recent business meeting of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Egan told of the beneficial results being noticed with those patients who exercise arthritic fingers, or soothe disturbed nerves by knitting afghan squares, winding crepe paper, and similar rhythmic crafts employing the interplay of muscles which may not have been used in this way for some time. She works in close co-operation with the physiotherapist, and the hospital auxiliary helps with the transportation of the patients to and from the craft room. At the moment the patients are busy making articles for the forthcoming bazaar.

Miss Egan was thanked by Mrs. Ruby Master, program chairman.

Final plans for the annual musical at Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday evening, May 25, were discussed. This is the major club project for the year and all proceeds go to the Bay Wigly Memorial Scholarship Fund. Mrs. J. Ingram Smith is general convener.

Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, president, was in the chair.

At Colorful Festival Tea

Swedish women in colorful national dress poured tea at a table decorated with the blue and yellow Swedish flag surrounded by yellow tulips and flanked by blue and yellow candles, Tuesday afternoon, in the Knights of Pythias Hall.

The occasion marked the first public appearance of the Swedish Canadian Social Group, which was organized in January. It also opened a series of five folk festival teas sponsored by the Canadian Folk Society. Mrs. V. Benson and Mrs. H. W. Turnquist presided at the table and Mrs. E. Swanson, also wearing national costume, received guests. Mrs. G. Weberg, Mrs. A. Cuthbert, Mrs. E. Naslund and Mrs. F. Teanson assisted in the kitchen.

Colorful Swedish costumes were worn by servers. Mrs. E. Kelner and Mrs. E. Gansen, who passed Swedish delicacies to the guests.

SWEDISH MAZARIN CAKE
A favorite was Swedish Mazarin cake, made by Mrs. Kelner, who consented to letting her prize recipe be known, so that guests may enjoy them again in their own homes.

Pastry: ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup powdered sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup flour. Filling: ½ cup sugar, ½ cup butter, ½ cup blanched almonds, ground, 2 eggs and green coloring (optional).

Work butter and sugar until white and fluffy. Add egg yolk and flour and stir until smooth. Leave dough in refrigerator one hour. Filling: Work sugar and butter until smooth. Add almonds, eggs and green coloring and mix until well blended. Roll out dough, place in individual tart shells and add filling. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 minutes. Top with whipped cream.

Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah opened the tea at 2:30 p.m. Special guests were Mrs. W. C. Bennett and Mrs. W. N. Chant.

Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, accepts a mazarin cake from hostess, Mrs. E. Swanson, at Swedish tea featured at Folk Festival. Mrs. E.

Mrs. Swanson is chairman of at Norway House to "get to the Swedish Canadian Social gether . . . know one another Group, which meets each month and have fun."

Esquimalt CWL
Membership Tea

Many new members and old friends were welcomed by president Mrs. A. Dickie at the annual membership tea of the Queen of Peace (Esquimalt) subdivision of Catholic Women's League.

Yellow tulips and blue iris decorated the hall for the occasion. Presiding at the head table were two members of many years' standing, Mrs. T. O'Leary and Mrs. R. White. Co-conveners of the tea were Mrs. G. Malenfant and Mrs. M. Hall, assisted by Mrs. A. Bethel. Servers were Misses Margo Malenfant and Teresa Edgington.

The retiring president, Mrs. A. Smith, was presented with a china tea set by Mrs. Dickie and a gold scroll with names of members. Mrs. C. Macklin was in charge of the raffle; Mrs. N. Warburton, membership cards, and Mrs. J. Comerford, door receipts.

Britain Triggers Atom Blast

Tremor Felt For 100 Miles

ONSLow, Australia (Reuters)—Britain exploded an "atomic device" on a high steel tower in the remote Monte Bello Islands today, setting off a flash like a sheet of lightning clearly visible here.

People in this northeast Australian port, 100 miles from the test site, felt a rumble like thunder and saw the familiar mushroom-shaped atomic cloud rise high over the horizon.

It turned pink in color as Canberra jet bombers streaked

Queen Denies Margaret's Engagement

LONDON (AP)—The Royal Family today officially denied that Princess Margaret is likely to become engaged to marry Prince Christian of Hanover.

A statement issued at Clarence House, the princess' home, said: "The press secretary of the Queen is authorized to say that the report that Princess Margaret is likely to become engaged to Prince Christian of Hanover is untrue."

The 35-year-old prince, German-born director of a London shipping firm, simultaneously issued a similar denial.

His statement said: "I wish to deny the story that I might become engaged to Princess Margaret and to say that there is no truth in these rumors."

The informant said the prince's command of English was not the best and he apparently had made this statement in reply to questions without quite realizing its implications.

The fair-haired six-foot prince is a director of a London shipping company. He and Margaret have rarely been in one another's company.

Christian is a brother of Queen Frederika of Greece and a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, which makes him a distant cousin of Margaret.

Rev. Richard M. Ward of Toronto, one of the victims of the Orleans jet crash, was "Father Dick" to hundreds of officers and men in the Pacific Command.

One of the most popular and most sincerely liked chaplains ever to serve on this coast, he was Pacific Command chaplain (RC) from January, 1952, to September, 1954.

"Father Dick" was a quiet-spoken, unassuming man, with a level, even temper. He was equally at home in wardroom, mess flat, or chapel; he enjoyed conversational relaxation, dispensed advice, spiritual and temporal counsel quietly and effectively.

At the time of his death, aged 42, he was an assistant chaplain of the fleet. He lived at the navy's residence and, in addition to his naval duties, served as parish priest to the surrounding community.

For four years, "Father Dick" was chaplain in the aircraft carrier HMCS Magnificent. When Canada sent destroyers to the Korean area to assist United Nations forces, he was flown to the Far East, where he acted as chaplain to all three of the destroyers first on the station—HMC Ships Sioux, Athabaskan and Cayuga. He was in Korea for more than a year.

His statement said: "In the name of the government and on my own behalf, I would express my most sincere sympathy to the distinguished community of the Grey Nuns of the Cross and to the families of the unfortunate victims of the disaster."

"I trust that the number of victims will not increase beyond that actually known at the present time, and I would extend to the injured my best wishes for a prompt recovery."

Municipalities To Get $1 a Head

B.C. government will distribute up to $1,250,000 in grants to aid local groups in staging centennial celebrations in 1958, and in paying for community projects.

Greater Victoria municipalities already have indicated willingness to "pool" their grants to formulate a lasting and worthwhile project.

Two separate grants will be available.

The first, of 40 cents per capita, will be distributed to assist in staging a 1958 centennial year celebration. The funds, from the provincial treasury, will go to each municipality which has formed a local centennial committee.

The second grant, up to a maximum of 60 cents per capita, will be available for a centennial project, preferably one of lasting value and significance to the community.

This grant will be given

Came Like Bomb Witness States

Crash Reminded Terrified Sister Of Dante's 'Inferno'; Toll Now 15

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—Flaming death Tuesday night plunged out of a dark night sky and enveloped aging nuns in white-hot metal and falling bricks.

Fifteen persons died in the fire and ammunition explosions that followed an RCAF CF-100 jet's plummet, like a giant arrow, into the centre of a three-story convalescent home for Grey Nuns near this town seven miles east of Ottawa. Four others were injured.

"I thought it was a bomb... it was horrible," said an eyewitness, Sister Louise Auguste, one of 22 who escaped.

"It reminded me of Dante's inferno... I'll never forget the screams as long as I live," said Lawrence Baker. He was among the first to reach the scene, and took part in fruitless rescue attempts.

Eleven Roman Catholic nuns—their ages ranged from 21 to 77—the plane's two-man crew, a priest and a laywoman cook perished in the inferno lit when the rocket-armed twin-jet smashed into the nunnery after a dive from 33,000 feet.

The air force disclosed today that the 17-ton CF-100 of air defence command was ordered into the air to identify a plane which turned out to be an RCAF North Star coming in from Resolute Bay in the Arctic and whose flight had been delayed.

One second meant life or death

One second was the measure between life and death for those asleep in the nunnery.

Given that second the CF-100 would have skimmed the convent's roof to crash in the open fields or the Ottawa river.

The crewmen would have died—but the others would have lived.

Crowds streamed in cars to the scene from Ottawa and other nearby communities. Highways became clogged. Drivers pulled their cars into ditches as far as two miles from the scene and walked the rest of the way.

Sister Marie Emond, assistant-general of the order, said there were 35 persons in the convent and that 22, including the four injured, escaped.

GIRL, 14, SAYS: 'I Saw the Plane Hit Building'

Editor's note: The following is an eyewitness account of Tuesday night's crash of a CF-100 fighter plane into the Villa St. Louis convent, near Ottawa, given by a 14-year-old girl whose parents operate a store and lunch counter in the neighborhood.

BY GLORIA FLOKA

OTTAWA (BUP)—I will never forget last night's horror as long as I live. Many nuns I knew and loved were burned to death when the plane crashed into the convent.

I can't forget their screams and the terrible crackle of the flames as the convent burned and crumpled.

Mommy tried to stop me going outside when we first heard the jet over our shop. It seemed to be only a few feet away. I went out and now

I am sorry I did.

I saw the burning plane hit the beautiful building. We all loved the convent, especially the little chapel where I have often attended mass.

I saw the chapel last night as I had never seen it before. The jet had crashed near the wall separating it from the other part of the main building and the chapel was lit up by the rockets bursting and later the fire that burned down everything.

Mommy and I just stood there and cried. We couldn't do anything for the crying nuns because we were too far away and the men of Hiawatha Park could only get a few of them out.

... CRASH

have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out.

"I had just time to run out and help out a few sisters who were disabled. Then the whole building seemed to go up like a torch."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb."

Lawrence Barber, one of the first to reach the scene, said he climbed a fire escape up what was left of one wall.

BANGING ON WALLS

"But I couldn't get in because of the flames," he said. "They (the nuns) were banging on the walls inside."

Mrs. Marie Flora, who operates a small restaurant about half a mile from the convent, said the plane was as fire as it went over.

"The whole house shook," she said. "They didn't have a chance."

$1 MILLION LOSS

The two-year-old nunnery was destroyed and loss was estimated at $1,000,000. Only a few sections of brick wall were left standing.

"It's still a total mystery," said Group Capt. Frank Miller, commander of the Uplands base. "It's unlikely the plane was on fire before the crash, despite what eye-witnesses said. It would be almost a one-in-a-million shot that it was on fire."

Verne Aythart, one of the rescuers, said screens on the windows hampered escape. He said he smashed in one screen and helped pull out two nuns.

"I can hear the screams yet," he said.

WORST OF ITS TYPE

The accident was the worst of its type in Canada. On April 25, 1944, an RAF four-engine Liberator bomber crashed into a Montreal tenement district, killing 16 persons.

Worst air accident in Canada occurred Jan. 26, 1950, when 44 persons were lost in the disappearance over the Yukon of a U. S. transport en route from Alaska to Texas.

Worst civilian air crash in Canada was the April 8, 1954, collision between a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star and an RCAF Harvard trainer over Moose Jaw, Sask. Thirty-seven died.

The scene at 9 a.m. today was one of devastation and mud—mud churned up in the fields around the ruins by bulldozers and other heavy clearing equipment brought in by the RCAF.

FLY OVER SITE

Two RCAF helicopters flew over the site of the devastation in an effort to determine the angle and direction from which the plane made its fatal plunge.

One air force officer, who declined to be quoted by name, said a "slash" in the wreckage was visible from the air. He said this would indicate the plane crashed after a fairly steep dive.

This was borne out by an eye-witness, Mrs. Joseph Carriere, who lives across the road a few hundred yards from the scene. She said she saw the plane circling before it made its plunge and that it came down fairly steeply.

GAVE LAST RITES

Rev. Ernest Preseault, parish priest for the area, said the convent was a mass of flames when he arrived Tuesday night about 20 minutes after the crash. He gave the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to Father Ward whose burned body was found outside the building.

The air force moved in a 100-man debris crew which began removing much of the rubble by hand.

MAJOR PLANE DISASTERS

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The last major air disaster in Canada before Tuesday's crash of an RCAF plane into a convent at Orleans, Ont., was the collision between an RCAF trainer and a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star over Moose Jaw, Sask., April, 1954.

The toll was 37 lives. Thirty-six died in the pileup—the worst air-line disaster in Canada involving a Canadian plane. One woman was killed on the ground when parts of the TCA plane fell into a house.

Forty-four persons were lost in the disappearance of a U.S. transport en route from the Yukon to Texas Jan. 26, 1950.

Major Canadian plane disasters include:

Feb. 6, 1941—12 killed, TCA, Armstrong, Ont.

Oct. 30, 1941—20, American Airlines, near St. Thomas, Ont.

Oct. 26, 1942—16, RAF ferry command bomber, Dorval, Que.

Dec. 20, 1942—13, Canadian Pacific Airlines, Vancouver.

Oct. 19, 1943—24, RCAF Liberator, near St. Donat, Que.

April 25, 1944—16, RAF transport, near Montreal.

Oct. 4, 1944—11, bomber crash off Vancouver island.

July 13, 1945—14, RCAF Liberator, on Vancouver island.

Crash Cause

Unknown Says

Campney

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney told the Commons today the cause of the CF-100 jet's crash at nearby Orleans last night is still unknown.

The minister visited the scene of the tragedy earlier today.

He said the plane was one of two CF-100 jets sent aloft at 9.30 p.m. to intercept an aircraft spotted by radar which was not immediately identifiable.

Mr. Campney said one of the jets returned to base under radar control. The other reported it still had excess fuel and would stay up a while longer.

That was its last radio transmission.

NUN DESCRIBES DRAMA OF DEATH

'Whole Building Seemed To Burst into Flames'

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—"It was the plane seemed to spread all over the roof and the whole thing was afire when I got outside."

In those terse phrases Sister Louise-Auguste described the grim drama of death she witnessed when an RCAF CF-100 jet fighter came screaming out of the night sky to plunge into a convalescent home of the Roman Catholic Grey Nuns near this village of 700.

Sister Auguste, a native of St. Arsenne de Temisque, Que., was one of the fortunate. She escaped unhurt.

"The plane came over and then hit the middle of the roof and blew up," Sister Auguste said. "I think everyone on the top floor must have been burned. Many on the ground floor also were unable to get out. It happened so fast no one can tell about it."

"The plane made a terrific crash when it hit. At first I thought it was a bomb. Then the fuel from on the walls inside," he added.

Richard Dinis, 16, told how he grabbed one nun by the billowing sleeve of her nightgown, which was afire. He led her from the building but his hand and arm was badly burned.

Ray Rainville said one aged nun was coaxed into jumping to safety.

"I grabbed her in my arms as she jumped and went down on my back with the weight. She hurt her back seriously."

In the light of the flaming convent debris two brothers, Gaston and Armand Lapointe, made the rounds through crowds of police, firemen and spectators, asking after their sister, Mrs. Aline Lapointe, 50, of Ottawa. She was a cook at the Villa St. Louis.

"I'm pretty sure she's gone," Gaston said. "She was right where the plane came through."

"I'm praying she got out, but I don't know."

Exclusive benefits of TCP receive official recognition

In 1953, after extensive research by Shell engineers and scientists, TCP was introduced to Canadian motorists.

Now Shell has been granted a patent for TCP*. This means official recognition of the advantages offered in this Shell-developed additive.

With the granting of this patent, it means Shell gasolines will continue to be the only gasolines giving you the extra benefits of TCP.

Today, with higher octane gasolines on the market, you need TCP more than ever. Without this special additive you cannot get full power from high octane gasoline, and only Shell premium gasoline gives you both high octane and TCP.

The Old Lamplighter

LONDON—Life in St. Johns Wood... Yesterday, in regard to innovations in the new Empress of Britain, I mentioned that some of us are not always in favor of what is termed Progress. I feel that Change does not necessarily mean Improvement.

Reyburn

Well, here I am right on our street amidst a group of people who apparently hold the same view, and very strongly. Last night I attended a protest meeting, called by one of our neighbors. Object of the protest was the new street lighting that's being installed.

Now, Cavendish avenue came into existence a hundred-odd years ago. That's not old as things go in this part of the world but the period in which these houses were built—Regency—was rather a good one as regards architecture. This street has, to coin a phrase, old world charm. The householder, kicked up quite a fuss a year or so ago when the borough resurfaced the road and relaid the sidewalk with neat concrete slabs.

The sidewalk formerly would have qualified as a crazy pavement, with uneven paving stones edged with gravel that became a tangle of wild grass before each summer was out. Walking along it was a hazard for at any time you were likely to trip and sprain an ankle. But it had charm and the Cavendish avenue citizens hated to see it converted into just another city sidewalk. But their protests were to no avail and the borough went ahead with Progress.

The red letterbox at the head of the street is an antiquated affair that leans over at a rakish angle. The borough wanted to replace it with a fine new one. But, protested the locals, the letterbox has VR on it—one of the few left in England. We don't want a modern one with E I I R on it. For all we know, this might be the original letterbox erected in Victorian times when stamps were invented. They won that fight.

But now the borough is trying to bring the street lighting up to date. Cavendish avenue is lit by gas lamp standards converted to electricity. In movies and in pictures of old London you've seen these wrought iron posts with a glassed-in lamp box on the top and a metal arm jutting out for the lamplighter's ladder to rest on. The borough intends to scrap these and the modern moulded concrete standards with efficient sodium flame lighting units that will take their place have already been placed in position ready to be hooked up.

When I lived on Cayuga avenue in Port Credit we held protest meetings to get better lighting. That's a usual thing in Canada. But not here. Not on Cavendish avenue, anyway. Last night's protest meeting, at which all householders were unanimous, was called to fight the borough's efforts to give the street better lighting.

These converted gas lamp standards have Old World Charm. In over a hundred years no one has ever been killed in a traffic accident or raped on Cavendish avenue, so they must be doing their lighting job well enough. How, under these glaring new lights, would the maids be able to have a good-night snooch with their boy friends in the gateways when they come home from their nights off?

The arguments for retention of the old streetlamps are overwhelming. But the mayor says the decision has been taken and the borough is going to go ahead.

However, the Cavendish avenue citizens have an ace up their sleeve. One of the householders happens to be one of Britain's leading barristers. They'll fight this thing to the High Courts, if necessary!

YOUR HEALTH

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation

Some persons ask me if they should rush into an operation for a supposed slipped disc in the neck. Naturally, without having the patient thoroughly examined by a good x-ray man and a good neurologist, I cannot venture an opinion. All I know is that in my own practice I have never seen a patient who, I thought, had a slipped disc in his neck. There probably should be such a disease, and cases have been reported, but because I do not see them, my impression is that they must be rare.

Dr. Alvarez

Usually, I think the symptoms complained of are due purely to a destructive arthritis of several of the vertebrae in the neck. I know, from personal experience, that with such a severe arthritis, from time to time distressing pain or burning can appear, usually just above a shoulder. But usually after a while this pain goes away even without any treatment.

I personally would not have an operation for a "slipped disc" in my neck unless I had very definite symptoms indicating the pressure of a disc on my spinal cord, or some of the nerves leaving it. I would want to have a very positive opinion from a neurologist in whose wisdom and conservatism I had great trust.

MEDICAL ADVISORS IN COURT

I just finished reading a remarkable book, called "Four Square," by Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, an able psychiatrist, who for many years following 1917, was medical officer and advisor to the Supreme Bench in Baltimore city. In 1917, one of the police magistrates, an able man, would often drop in at the great Phipps clinic to get help from the psychiatrist on the problem of dealing with a criminal who had just come before him. Often the judge would have a hunch that the man was not sane, but not having had a psychiatric training, he could not be sure.

From the conversations Dr. Oliver had with this judge, he decided to spend more than half of his day helping the police courts with their many medical problems. Eventually, the judges so appreciated this impartial help that whenever there was any question of the mental condition of an accused person, the man was quickly referred to the doctor. Either the defence or the prosecution could refer the man, and since both the defence and the prosecution attorneys learned to abide by the decision given them by their friends, the psychiatrists.

Is it not remarkable that when an expert like this worked so well it was not quickly adopted by all the courts of this land?

All my life, as I have traveled that when a man accused of murder was obviously psychotic, he was likely to be quickly condemned and soon executed. The reason for this was that, being of unsound mind, the man was particularly brutal to his victim and completely callous and without regret afterward. It was this callousness that got him hanged so quickly. Actually, if the people in the community and the judge and jury had had the slightest knowledge of psychiatry they would have seen that the man had acted insanely.

All this does not mean that I want to coddle or set free the criminally insane. Our mental hospitals are not designed well enough to hold the criminally insane. These men easily escape from antiquated buildings, and hence they should be kept in prisons. But it is sad that our courts are often highly inconsistent in their handling of the really insane, and of those murderers who want to escape by pleading insanity.

TINGLING OR NUMB LEGS

Persons ask what they should do when their legs tingle or feel numb or weak. They should go immediately to a good physician and have their blood tested to make sure that they are not developing what we doctors call a primary or pernicious form of anemia. Such persons can usually be tremendously helped, almost overnight, by injections of vitamin B12. These persons often tell me that they know of a relative who died years ago of anemia. Often my patient turned grey early—perhaps in her 20's or 30's. In case of doubt, I pump the stomach and test the gastric contents for hydrochloric acid. If the person has no acid in his stomach and very little juice he may well be a candidate for a primary anemia. If he has plenty of gastric juice he is not likely ever to get a bad anemia, even if there is the tendency to this running in the family.

Trade Group Would Protect Fish Grounds

The Pacific Northwest Trade Association here Tuesday took steps to halt possibility of a "Central American fish company" moving into salmon fishing waters off the coasts of British Columbia, Washington and Oregon.

In a strongly worded resolution at the close of the PNFTA convention here, delegates called on the governments of Canada and the United States to say "no" to the bid.

The company involved was believed to be from Peru.

Delegates termed the move a definite "threat" to the Canadian and U.S. salmon fishery.

It was deemed unwarranted because the northwest fishery "has been developed solely by the fishermen of our countries."

Birch Planting For Anniversary

Any 50th anniversary is worthy of some kind of celebration.

A half century may seem a long period to the very young, but I'm sure the time has passed quickly enough for both myself and the municipality of Saanich.

Saanich has too few trees in its residential areas, and so it is my ambition this week to plant a group which should add a corner of beauty commemorating this anniversary for the two of us.

We have ornamental flowering prunes and crabs on the place and a half dozen other slow growing trees suitable to a half acre. But now I'm really going to celebrate by planting a group of birch.

My memories of birch are from the Muskoka woods north of Toronto, where their delicacy and airy grace are a feature of the lake shores. All through the four seasons the silver and yellow birches have inspired many a poet and artist, and even those not thus gifted.

Now for our Saanich garden I hope to make this little corner planting of birches a haven for woodland plants which thrive in light shade—primula, helleborus, hosta, and some of the lilies. Many other plants will in time find their way into the airy shade of the birches, and birds will build nests in the branches.

And the trees should be there long after the lilies and I are forgotten.

Labor Group 'Pink' Float Kicked Out

The National Federation of Labor Youth will have no float in the Victoria Day parade Monday.

Greater Victoria Celebrations' Association Tuesday endorsed an earlier stand barring participation of the allegedly Communist-front organization after the federation appealed.

The float was to carry maps of Canada, shaded pink, and signs reading: "Canada Blushed at Her Olympic Standing... Spending $10,000,000 for Sports and Recreation Now."

Association vice-chairman Magistrate A. I. Thomas said the float was rejected as "it was felt that owing to their beliefs, their ideology, the parade was not the proper place for the float."

Anti-Rabies Shot Rule for Pets in National Parks

VANCOUVER—Pet owners visiting Canada's national parks this year are required to have an anti-rabies vaccination certificate for each animal accompanying them.

The certificate in each case must show that the dog, cat or other pet has been vaccinated against rabies within the 12 months immediately preceding the date of entering the park. Parks are game sanctuaries and this move is to protect the fauna.

The regulation will be in force in the following parks. Mount Revelstoke, Glacier, Kootenay and Yoho in British Columbia, Banff, Jasper, Waterton Lakes and Elk Island in Alberta, Prince Albert in Saskatchewan and Riding Mountain in Manitoba.

EVEREST'S HEIGHT

Indian government surveyors say the height of Mount Everest, world's tallest mountain, is 29,208 feet.

Rhee Returned, But Margin Down 21%

SEOUL (AP)—Doughty old Syngman Rhee has won his expected third term as South Korea's president, but strong opposition cut his vote to only about 55 per cent of the total ballots cast in Tuesday's election.

The 81-year-old Conservative, South Korea's only president since the republic was established in 1948, polled 72.6 per cent of the total vote in the 1952 election.

In the separate vice-presidential ballots, Rhee's running mate, Lee Ki Poong, today was trailing the Democratic party candidate, Chang Myun, a former ambassador to the United States. However, Lee was still given a good chance to pull ahead in the rural counting.

Because of Rhee's advanced age, many think the next vice-president may well turn out to be the old man's presidential heir.

Rhee piled up a big lead in the country districts. In the big cities of Seoul and Taegu he trailed the combined total of his opponents.

Medium Says Space Ships, Men Frequent Visitors to Earth

By TONY DICKASON

Mark Probert emphatically asserts flying saucers are not a publicity stunt by Wedgewood or Spode.

Mark, from San Diego, is a medium, and a deep one.

He told a public meeting Tuesday night in the Dominion Hotel about spacemen and their saucers.

Space ships have landed on the world, "many times," he said. Governments know of this but are a little leary about frightening Sadie McSlug in the pickle factory if disclosures are unveiled.

"Space is not empty," said Mr. Probert. "There are living beings in it."

That's where the saucers come from—not other planets, but from space.

"You live in three dimensions, but there are other frequencies of matter that you know nothing about," he said during the two-hour session.

JUST INQUISITIVE

Spacemen land here because they are nosey. They want to know how long the earth will last, and trash like that.

Mr. Probert, 49, is a quick-bunny-like man who, when not being a medium, is an extremely likeable person. He seems as sincere as could be expected.

The medium media started in 1942 just a few months after his marriage. Wife Irene was awakened by Mark's talk, which was in foreign languages.

So they got a chap from a university who knew about such things and he said, sure enough, Mark was talking in East Indian, Chinese and accents of various esoteric areas.

Next step, he consulted a metaphysician. There was no doubt about it. Mark was tranced, but good.

This language business, he found later, was an attempt by

"the teachers" to speak through him on matters of science, philosophy, metaphysics and occultism.

This was what was going on Tuesday night. The teachers were teaching.

The medium does not deliver personal messages, or dabble with such things as religion.

"His work is all educational," said wife Irene.

Mr. Probert takes the casual attitude regarding his work. "I don't expect anyone to believe anything as I don't know what to believe myself."

It was suggested he might check a reputable psychiatrist. To this he answered with a disarming smile and "No, I don't want to stop hearing the voices. It's my work."

The voices won't answer on stocks, horse races, gold or market fluctuations. "My teachers won't be involved in those things."

One of his informers is a man named E Yada Di Shi Ito who lived, according to Yada, about 5,000 years ago in India.

City's Festival Ticket Sales Much Too Slow

Advance sales for two paid-admission Victoria Day week-end events are slow—so slow Greater Victoria Celebrations Association "... may die a natural death."

GVCA chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgell Tuesday said businessmen and organizations are doing all possible to ensure financial success of the annual three-day celebration. But unless the general public supports a Sunday night Victoria Symphony "pops" concert at Victoria Curling Rink and a Monday night dance at Memorial Arena, officials see the celebrations ending "in the red."

Tickets for the "pops" concert are on sale at Hudson's Bay Co. store. Dance admissions may be paid at the door, GVCA office, Hudson's Bay, Eaton's and the armed forces leave centre.
